All X rays called 'health hazard'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A statistical expert for a leading cancer institute told a Senate committee Friday that even low dosages of X rays are a health hazard.

Irwin D. J. Bross, director of biostatistics at the Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, N.Y., said new findings done by his team and others indicate that dangers of low level radiation are "far worse" than anyone expected.

He said the small dosages, as well as larger amounts of X rays can result in possible cancers or birth defects.

"Millions of Americans have been exposed to diagnostic X ray which have sometimes done serious harm, but we cannot do much about this now except to wait a few years and hope to catch the leukemia or cancer early," said Bross.

Bross estimated that of the 15 million Americans who get X-rayed each year, about 10 million get an unnecessary exposure.

He figured that only about half a million — or only one patient in 30 — get X rays for very serious conditions where, for instance, the exposure might save their lives.

Bross, testifying at the Senate Commerce Committee's hearings on radiation and health, said too many physicians practice "defensive medicine" and order unnecessary laboratory tests or X rays in case of a malpractice suit.

Additionally, he said, X rays are given out of sheer habit as well as the "persistence of antiquated motions about annual examinations for tuberculosis and other diseases." In many other cases, said Bross, patients are unable to get possession of their own X rays when they change doctors, and therefore get a new set.

But, basically the root of the problem is money, Bross told the committee.

"These X rays are ordered routinely because they will be paid for by third-party insurers just as routinely. If they weren't paid for," he said, "they would not be given."

Bross recommended that a certificate of necessity signed by two physicians should be required before there can be any third party payment for X ray.

Mitchell, Haldeman final appeal issued

WASHINGTON (AP) — A purported "news leak" over closed Supreme Court deliberations requires that the court review the appeals of Watergate cover-up defendants John Mitchell and H.R. Haldeman, attorneys for the two men said Friday.

In their last effort to save Mitchell and Haldeman from long prison stays set to begin next week, their attorneys were to ask the Supreme Court to reconsider its May 23 decision not to hear the cover-up appeals, according to a text of the appeal obtained by The Associated Press.

Mitchell and Haldeman are to report to federal prisons next Wednesday.

"Petitioners assert that such a breach of this court's secrecy has deprived them of due process and equal protection ...." the petition for a rehearing said.

House move to cut off U.S. abortion money cheered by right-to-life group

CHICAGO (AP) — Claiming a major victory for their cause, delegates to the National Right to Life Committee convention broke into wild cheers Friday after the U.S. House of Representatives voted to cut off federal money to pay for abortions.

Dr. Carolyn Gerster, who interrupted a morning session to announce the news from Washington, said the reaction was "relief, exuberance and unbridled joy. I've never seen such joy."

Pro-life advocates are "very, very hopeful the Senate will approve the same passage," she said. "We knew that groups like Zero Population Growth and Planned Parenthood were calling out all their forces to get rid of the abortion-prohibitive language in the bill."

The 201-155 vote favoring the abortion restrictions is "regarded as a major turning point because it was a test between the two forces," said Dr. Gerster, re-elected Thursday as chairman of the board.

The Scottsdale, Ariz. internist described the movement as "a sleeping giant. We simply have not realized our own strength."

Earlier, the group's president described the vote as an example of the growing political effectiveness of Right to Life organizations.

A major theme of the three-day convention, attended by about 3,000 delegates, is a call to political action, Dr. Mildred F. Jefferson said. "We have reached the crisis point, where either we gain political effectiveness ... or we break up, as other movements have done," she said in an interview.

Estimating that as many as 11 million Americans support the pro-life cause, she said the group's No. 1 priority is to "coalesce and channel the direction of the movement to bring about ratification of the 'Human Life Amendment.'"

The proposed constitutional amendment would outlaw abortions except those required to save the life of the mother.

To achieve that goal, she said, "we must become fund raisers and precinct captains, work in political campaigns, get into the party structure and influence national platforms."

Pointing out that it has been four years since the U.S. Supreme Court ruling that allows abortions, she noted that "we've wasted too much time already."

"All the Supreme Court did was to draw a curtain around the first 12 weeks of pregnancy," she said. "This has resulted in millions of atrocities, the killing of unborn babies."

She claimed the pro-life movement gains strength "with every adverse legal decision that strikes down the right for life, which is the most basic human right of all. They (abortion rights' advocates) do not have the numbers we do. Their gains have been achieved with behind-the-scenes maneuvering."

Dr. Jefferson, a Boston surgeon, was re-elected by acclamation at the convention's opening session Thursday.

Seminars at the fifth annual gathering have spanned a broad range of issues, including such topics as euthanasia and the enactment of so-called "living will" bills in more than half the states. Still, the anti-abortion theme has dominated most discussions.

Energy tax cut in half, then passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest energy-saving tax in President Carter's program was sliced in half and then approved Friday by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Committee technicians contended that despite the cutback in the tax on the industrial use of oil and natural gas, the panel's plan would save almost as much energy as the President's version.

The committee approved the tax on a 19-1 vote but delayed until next week a decision on how to get most of the money back to industries and utilities to help them pay for converting their oil-and gas-burning facilities to coal power.

The Carter administration estimates the President's version of the tax and rebate would save the equivalent of 3.3 million barrels of oil daily by 1985. The entire energy program outlined by Carter in April would save an estimated 4.5 million barrels. Current U.S. usage is 17.4 million barrels per day.

The tax imposed in the committee bill would be essentially the same as under Carter's program, especially when fully effective in 1985. But the key difference is that the committee's tax would apply to considerably fewer industries and utilities than would the President's.

Supreme Court lets death penalty stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court left undisturbed Friday the death sentence given a Florida man convicted of torturing and slaying two of his children even though Florida did not have a valid capital punishment law when he committed the crimes.

In a 6-3 vote, the justices rejected Dobbert's claims that his sentence represented an "ex post facto" application of a constitutionally valid death penalty law the Florida Legislature passed Dec. 8, 1972.

In the Florida case, the court's majority ruled that Dobbert knew when he committed the murders that he could face execution.

Dobbert, now a Florida death row inmate, was convicted of killing his 9-year-old daughter Kelly Ann in late 1971 or early 1972 and his son Ryder Scott in early 1972.

At that time, Florida had a death penalty law on its books but it was struck down when the Supreme Court ruled on June 22, 1972 that all states' death penalty laws as then applied were unconstitutional.

Florida moved swiftly to draft a new death penalty law, and did so later that year. The Supreme Court last July upheld the law as constitutional.

Dobbert, who stood trial in 1974, was tried and sentenced under the new law. His trial jury voted 10 to 2 to give Dobbert life in prison but the trial judge, enpowered under the Florida law to disregard the jury's recommendation, imposed the death sentence. The state Supreme Court upheld the judge's action.

Outspoken general 'rebuked'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army officials rebuked a three-star general Friday night for his unauthorized warning that the United States might wind up in the middle of a Soviet-Chinese war, but took no action to block his pending promotion or scheduled new assignment.

Lt. Gen. Donn A. Starry, who arrived from Germany earlier in the day, spent 30 minutes on the carpet before Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Army Chief of Staff Bernard W. Rogers at the Pentagon.

Their response was seen as a small tap on the wrist.

After the meeting, Alexander and Rogers issued a statement saying they had reminded Starry of the need to clear speeches before delivery, and "we expressed our mutual concern that he had failed to do so."

Starry, 52, the second general to get into hot water within a month for speaking out of line, was not observed by reporters going in or going out of the building.

Arriving at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York earlier Friday, Starry told reporters only:

"I have just arrived in the United States en route to my new assignment. I have been ordered to Washington to discuss my speech with the secretary of the Army and the Army chief of staff. Thank you very much."

The general's nomination for a fourth star has been blocked on Capital Hill at the request of Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., until members of the Senate Armed Services Committee have a chance to read the controversial speech the general made.

Expo 81 multi-million dollar funding plan may be unveiled

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Expo 81 representatives may unveil the details of a multi-million dollar revenue bond Tuesday night that would take care of all funding requirements for the proposed international exposition at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Jerry Clemans, public relations director for Expo 81 Corp., reported Friday that exposition representatives will attend the Ontario City Council meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. The discussion is set near the end of a nine-page agenda.

Clemans stated was a special meeting held last Monday to brief representatives of all parties concerned with the financing arrangements for Expo 81 on the details of the bond issue. Among those attending were representatives of the Bank of America which serves as trustee for the present OMS bondholders; the U.S. Department of Commerce; the City of Ontario and Ontario Motor Speedway; and Expo 81 legal counsel.

Clemans explained that about three weeks ago, Expo 81 Corp. hired the firm of Bear, Stearns and Co. of New York City as the investment banking organization for Expo 81 and the international firm of Touche Ross and Co. as financial management and accounting team.

These firms were "hired in order to structure a multi-million dollar municipal type bond issue," Clemans said. "We agreed that the master or umbrella financing would be best handled by this. It is a revenue tax exempt bond issue with no underwriting or guarantee required by any governmental agency.

"In other words, no tax dollars are committed or required to guarantee this, as opposed to a general obligation type bond.

"This will be paid only through revenue from the fair. No taxpayers' dollars are involved," Clemans asserted.

The Expo 81 Corp. board of directors, in a special meeting Thursday night, approved the particulars of the financing plan; but Clemans said no exact dollar figures on the size of the bond have been determined as yet.

Representatives of the Commerce Department and Bank of America have indicated favorable opinions on the bond, he added. The Commerce

Police kill 6, jail 278 in S. Africa race riots

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police shot six blacks dead and arrested 278 Friday in two segregated black townships 500 miles southwest of Johannesburg. The death toll climbed to nine from two days of arson, looting and rock throwing, authorities said.

Thirty-three persons were wounded in confrontations with police and an estimated $1.5 million damage was done to government buildings, schools and other property in Kwanobuhle and Kabah, black townships outside the white city of Uitenhage in the southern Cape area.

Twenty-nine blacks were reported injured, most from gunshots, throughout South Africa as a result of confrontations with police Thursday and Friday. No nationwide figures were available on arrests. Most the black townships were reported quiet Friday.

Police used tear gas to quell rock throwing youths in Soweto, the country's largest black township 10 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

The violence coincided with the first anniversary of the bloody Soweto riots, which began June 16 and resulted in months of racial upheaval that claimed 600 lives.

The violence in the southern townships began with rockthrowing in Kabah on Thursday. Late-night looting and arson followed and spread to nearby Kwanobuhle. Initial targets were government buildings and other symbols of authority, but it was not known what triggered the rioting.

Police Brig. P.J. Hugo said officers shot and killed five rioters who had repeatedly tried to loot a liquor store in Kwanobuhle. One rioter was fatally wounded in Kabah early Friday and two alleged looters were found burned to death in a gutted store after a fire Thursday night.

Police said a ninth rioter died under unknown circumstances.

A total of 40,000 blacks live in the two townships and many work in the auto centers of Uitenhage and Port Elizabeth.

Police said rioters set fire to Kabah township's six schools, two liquor stores, a beer hall, workshop, funeral parlor, community center, several stores and cars.

Hugo said the arrests came Friday afternoon during a massive police swoop to quell the violence in Kwanobuhle. Hugo is division police commander in Port Elizabeth; where extensive rioting occurred last year, and was placed in charge of riot control in the townships about 20 miles inland.

Auto workers finally back air bags

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union ended a long silence on air bags Friday by announcing its support of the safety devices and goading automakers for foot-dragging on safety matters.

UAW President Douglas A. Fraser said he has urged Transportation Secretary Brock Adams to require that new cars be equipped with a passive restraint system — either air bags or safety belts that automatically buckle around an occupant.

Adams has promised to decide by July 1 whether to require air bags, as the insurance industry wants, or keep current belt systems and enact a mandatory belt use law, as the auto industry is seeking.

"I think the evidence is simply overwhelming that a passive restraint system would save thousands of lives," said Fraser, noting one government study which concluded air bags could save 9,000 lives a year.

"... This matter has been under study for 10 years now and I think it's about time to come to a decision," he said.

"Time after time, the auto industry has dragged its feet on safety issues until forced to act by the government and the American people," added Fraser, who succeeded Leonard Woodcock as president of the union just one month ago.

The UAW's stance directly opposes that of the auto industry.

Recently, the union and industry have agreed on several major policy issues. Both lobbied for delays in implementing tougher auto pollution standards and against key elements of President Carter's energy plan — including the tax on gas-guzzling cars, rebates on fuel efficient models and standby gasoline tax increase.

Detroit has argued that air bags are not as effective as shoulder-lap belts and are substantially more expensive.

But air bag advocates say studies show less than a quarter of the driving public bothers to buckle seat belts.

Automakers say air bags could add up to $300 to the price of a new car. But government studies indicate the price could be less than $100, and consumer advocate Ralph Nader has said they could be mass-produced for as little as $50 apiece.

Air bags are "passive" restraint systems because the occupant does not have to do anything, such as buckling up, to be protected.

A Chrysler Corp. executive said Friday he was "amazed the UAW is promoting use of a second-best system for saving lives."

Chrysler Vice President Sidney Terry noted a government study showing that present belt systems are 50 per cent more effective in preventing serious injury than air bags.

"If everybody used safety belts in all cars now, 19,000 lives would be saved each year, several times more than air bags would ever save," said Terry.

Toth arrives in London

LONDON (AP) — Los Angeles Times correspondent Robert C. Toth arrived Friday night from Moscow after prolonged interrogation by Soviet secret police about articles he had written and his contacts with Soviet dissidents.

Toth, appearing tired after more than 12 hours of questioning over the past several days, told airport reporters he thought the motive behind his grilling was that "they wanted to scare a lot of correspondents and dissidents."

Toth, 48, was questioned several times in Moscow's Lefortovo prison. He said: "I am sure if the White House and State Department hadn't come out as strongly as they did, I'd still be in the pokey."

Asked if he had been physically mistreated during his sessions in the prison, Toth said he had not. He added, "Psychologically it was very wearing to know that you had to go back day after day, session after session."

Toth said he thought the questioning of him was particularly aimed at Anatoly Shcharansky, a Jewish activist and a prominent dissident who is being held and apparently will be charged with treason.

Toth knew Shcharansky well.

"By their (the Soviets') definition treason is almost anything that makes anyone think less of the Soviet Union," Toth said. "If you say they have dirty streets it could be considered damaging to the state and therefore treasonable."

Asked if at any time he feared he might be imprisoned, Toth said, "I thought there was a significant chance that I would be locked up, but I did not think it was a probability."

The correspondent, who served about three years in Moscow, was accompanied by his wife, Paula, and their children John, 7; Jennifer, 9, and Jessica, 13.

Asked how it felt to be out of the Soviet Union, Toth said, "Fine" and added with a smile, "My eldest daughter said, 'You can't believe it — they have clean toilets here.'"

Toth had been on the point of leaving the Soviet Union anyway, at the end of his assignment, but earlier this week was told by authorities he would have to remain until they had finished their investigations of him. Later they said he was free to leave as scheduled.

The Toths plan to stay in London until Sunday, when they will fly to Los Angeles.

Upland man wounded by 100 shotgun pellets

Humberto Ernest Cordero, 26, was shot one time in the back and had more than 100 shotgun pellets removed from his buttocks and lower back. He was admitted to San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Deputies said Martinez and Cordero, who was being employed by Martinez, became involved in a dispute on Club House Drive in Cucamonga at about 4:30 a.m.

They said Martinez was reportedly upset over personal problems and shot Cordero after the argument.

Six accused of soliciting

Six women arrested early Friday at an Ontario truck stop were accused of prostitution

Police said the suspects were arrested individually after undercover officers posing as truck drivers were solicited.

Booked at the sheriff's jail in Ontario were Rosemary Irene Burrows, 26, Riverside; Debra Ann Sanders, 28, San Bernardino; Julie Slosky, 18, Hollywood; Betty Hale, 21, Riverside; Judy Dawsey, 25, Riverside; and Donna Thompson, 19, San Bernardino.

Bail was set at $500 for each suspect. All said they were unemployed. The truck stop is located on Milliken Avenue.

Expo funding plan to be told

Department's acceptance of the plan is contingent upon meeting all deadlines set by the federal government for completion of other plans for the fair. If those deadlines are not met, Clemans stated, "Ontario and Los Angeles will not have a world exposition. This is, in other words, the final proposition.

"Expo 81 doesn't have time, because of the government deadline, to delay any further. We must reach agreement along these lines or there will not be an exposition. There isn't time left to continue the debate."

This revenue bond plan does not replace any of the existing financial programs, Clemans observed; for example, the $30 to $60 million in construction financing from International Planners and Developers, a consortium of construction companies.

The bond, he said, would "provide us with the master or umbrella financing which will absorb or retire these other interim plans."

The public relations director also reported that there has been a change in the means of acquiring the speedway site. Rather than purchasing the existing speedway bonds "we propose to lease the site for the period between now and 1982 and pay the existing bondholders a substantial sum of money for the lease," Clemans said.

Pointing out that OMS is now in default some $30 million, Clemans said that if the Bank of America forecloses on the site, "everybody to a large extent would lose something. The city would lose its $7 million reversionary rights and the speedway bonds would be valueless except what can be auctioned off.

"The lease would give everybody a substantial sum of money," he said, "and at the end of the fair the bondholders would have received all the money from rent and still have an existing lien on the track plus improvements."

The revenue bond issue would require approval of the state Legislature, not citizens. Clemans said it hasn't been decided who will introduce the issue into the state Legislature.

"There's a lot of guessing going on. And it's just guessing, nothing else. A decision will be reached within the next two weeks," Clemans said.

"The timing of the introduction of this is not necessarily a key factor. Whether it's introduced now or after the legislature is convened in August doesn't make much difference as long as it's in the hopper," he said.

Sam Crowe, attorney for the City of Ontario and the OMS board, will meet with both the City Council and speedway board Monday in legal session to discuss the legalities and language of the revenue bond and its effects upon the city

Upland board okays pay hike for administrators

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Despite strong objections from two board members, the Upland school board has voted to grant 6.5 per cent salary increases to 16 district administrators.

The raises were approved on a 3-2 vote with trustees Dina Ross Hunter and Robert Ellis opposing them. Barry Brandt, William Rugg and Dale Anderson voted in favor of the increases.

Mrs. Hunter, in a public statement following a closed executive session at which the raises were discussed, said, "Increases of this kind are not fiscally acceptable. Considering income levels in the community, administrative salaries are more than adequate.

"Across-the-board percentage increases distort the salary range. It is a misnomer that all employes should receive the same percentage increase."

Supt. George Renworth said the increases were for central office administrators (except himself) and district principals. He noted the salaries for the administrators range from $28,492 to $33,266.

"The argument among board members was over what kind of raises these people should get," he said. "When you start discussing salaries in the $30,000 bracket, it gets pretty emotional."

Board members also approved, on the same 3-2 vote, adjustments to salaries plus a 6.4 per cent cost-of-living boost for 11 confidential and classified employes. Seven are confidential (secretarial) workers and four are classified "directors" of maintenance, food services, transportation and accounting.

Total cost to the district for all the raises is $54,000, noted Renworth.

In other business, trustees approved an $8,873,940 tentative budget for 1977-78 that is $900,000 higher than last year's figure.

Renworth declined to estimate the tax rate, but indicated it may drop "a few cents." He said assessed valuation figures are not in yet, so it is hard to present an accurate tax rate.

'Thank you' comes from helicopter

The Pomona Police Department Thursday issued a public thank you from its helicopter for assistance in the search for a missing youngster.

From about 2:30 to 6:30 p.m., the department's helicopter circled over the northeastern part of the city announcing the description of a missing 6-year-old boy.

During the several hours, police officers asked residents of the area to call the department with any information.

At dusk, the helicopter again circled the area.

This time the message was "Thank you for your cooperation. We have located the youngster. Thank you."

U.S. fight against cancer paying off

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's fight against cancer is paying dividends in the form of fewer deaths, more effective drugs, and less expensive and more reliable tests for the disease, the acting director of the National Cancer Institute says.

Dr. Guy R. Newell told a House subcommittee on Thursday that cancer deaths are decreasing among members of every age group under 35.

He said the country's efforts against the disease in the past five years have also meant development of new classes of anti-cancer drugs and less hazardous cigarettes.

Seventeen months in advance of the next election, Clifford L. Sumrall of Etiwanda has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination in the 35th Congressional District.

This district seat now is held by a second-term congressman, Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-West Covina.

"I'm announcing now," said Sumrall, "because Republicans are at the bottom of the pile and I've got a lot to overcome.

"It will be a long, hard pull. If I'm going to get into the action, I've got to get into it now. Most Republicans agree, since I'm totally unknown."

Sumrall, associate professor of communications and director of debate at Chaffey College, Alta Loma, said in seeking the nomination he had something he really wants to do.

The REPUBLICAN CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF LOS ANGELES COUNTY voted overwhelmingly this week to commend singer Anita Bryant and her "Save Our Children" Committee for "upholding moral standards in Dade County, Florida."

Committee chairman Bill Orozco strongly supported the move saying, "We feel the vote in Florida was a victory for normal people all across America. The Republican Party has consistently argued against allowing homosexuals to flaunt their abberation in public."

The Dade County Democrat Central Committee voted to support the homosexual position, Orozco said. Commenting on this, he added, "Whether moral disintegration surfaces in Miami, Fla., or Hollywood, Calif., it is the duty of public entities to stand up and be counted.

"In Los Angeles County, the Republican Party has taken a clear stand in favor of the family unit and a decent, moral society.

Sumrall is president of the Community Service Club in Etiwanda. He wants to see people accomplish more on their own instead of relying on government for cradle-to-grave security.

"Congress must stop deficit spending," he said. "My Democratic opponent voted to increase the national debt to $86 million.

"Regulatory agencies must be cut back. Congress, in the past 15 years, has added 200 new agencies, bureaus and commissions which are staffed, supplied and supported by the taxpayer.

"Instead, it has stifled it by make-work programs and government controls."

Claremont can't lease park to Y

By GEORGE MACLAREN
PB Staff Writer

Claremont City Attorney William Bergman has ruled that under "case and constitutional law of the state" the city could not legally lease Cahuilla Park land to the Claremont YMCA.

In a memo received and filed by the City Council this week, Bergman stated that in his opinion a working agreement within the parameters acceptable to the YMCA cannot be obtained unless an election is held and the portion of the park sought by the Y is abandoned by the city.

Bergman said the law requires that public parks be open to the public and that includes buildings in the parks.

He said that a city's lease of a clubhouse adjacent to bowling greens to a bowling club is proper, provided that club membership is open to all the public.

Bergman cited a case of a nursery school using a county park building for storage of equipment, and said the court ruled the general public was excluded from the use of the park because the school had exclusive use of the building and its facilities, and therefore was not a proper use of the park.

Bergman cited a section of the government code which permits a city to sell off a portion of a park after public hearings and after an affirmative vote of the citizenry.

Gyle Tague, chairman of the Claremont YMCA, said he had not yet received a copy of Bergman's opinion, but that it had been the Y's original intent to explore all possibilities.

"But in exploring more and more the Cahuilla Park possibility, the matter became more complicated," Tague said.

"It is obvious," he continued, "that it would be more complicated than we have time to work on such a matter. The Y needs some autonomy. We are looking at two other sites, one on Base Line Road, the other on Foothill Boulevard."

Tague said that the Y has been operating in Claremont 10 years, and that it has reached the point that in order to grow it needs a full-service facility.

Tague said such a facility includes a gymnasium, a swimming pool, handball courts and lockers and shower rooms.

Tague commended the City Council for looking at the possibilities, but said that the legalities seem to dictate what is possible.

The Y at present is operating its program out of an office at the Old Baldy Council Boy Scout building on San Jose Avenue in Claremont.

Trustee against rehiring Jones

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Ontario-Montclair school trustee Kathleen Brugger stunned her fellow board members Thursday night by suggesting that Supt. Jack Jones' contract not be renewed.

The board later renewed Jones' contract for another four years after a 40-minute closed personnel session.

Mrs. Brugger never publicly explained why she made a motion that, in effect, would have terminated Jones had she received support from other board members.

Trustee Sam DiGiovanni, who moved to renew Jones' contract following the hastily-called personnel session, said Mrs. Brugger only had a "minor question" about the contract. "It was only a misunderstanding of the contract."

He asked Mrs. Brugger if that was true, and she answered affirmatively. But she did not explain what the "minor question" or "miscalculation" was.

DiGiovanni maintained there was "no big mystery" over the contract issue but admitted he was stunned when Mrs. Brugger made her earlier suggestion.

Board members were considering renewing contracts for Jones, Deputy Supt. George Duerr and two assistant superintendents. Mrs. Brugger asked that Jones' contract be acted upon separately.

Then, just after the other administrators' contracts were renewed, Mrs. Brugger moved "not to approve the superintendent's contract."

Jones immediately said, "This is news to me."

DiGiovanni echoed Jones' feelings and called for a closed personnel session. "We should not discuss any employe in open session," he noted, explaining that under the law boards are permitted to discuss it behind closed doors.

Jones asked to join the board at the session, but they decided to discuss the issue without him.

"I'd like to know what motivated that suggestion," Jones told a reporter while the board was out of the room. "It came as a complete surprise to me."

Jones has been the district superintendent for four years. Mrs. Brugger was elected to her post in March.

Father's Day phone calls expected up

An improving economy may result in Dad being called more often this Father's Day than in previous years, said Jack M. King, public affairs administrator for General Telephone Co.

King said all long-distance calling patterns are up this year, due in part to an upswing in the national economy. And if the trend holds true, the telephone company expects a 15 per cent increase in calls on Father's Day over the volume recorded last year.

Although the final figures are not yet in, General Telephone estimates that calling on Mother's Day was up a similar percentage over last year.

"Even though Dad's calls may increase in number this year, he still plays second fiddle to Mom on her day," King noted. "Traditionally the company's call volumes are up over a normal Sunday by about 75 per cent on Mother's Day, while the increase for Dad averages only around 40 per cent.

Normally General Telephone has 500 long distance operators scheduled throughout the company for Sunday duty. "That number was doubled on Mother's Day," King said. "Although not that many are needed on Father's Day, we will be adding operators to the work force in each of our 20 long-distance offices on Father's Day.

"It's still a good idea to call Dad early — maybe even on Saturday (today) — to avoid the potential busy circuits on Father's Day. Direct dialing is the least expensive way to call," King advised, "with the lowest rates in effect from 11 p.m. on Friday and continuing through the weekend until 5 p.m. on Sunday."

Land developers will have to pay for parks

San Bernardino County supervisors will require land developers who build in Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda to donate land or pay fees for development of parks.

This supports County Service Area No. 50, which provides park and recreation facilities for residents in the three communities. The group is developer of a plan which calls for five acres of parks for every 1,000 residents.

Supervisors last February adopted an ordinance that allows for collection of fees or land from developers when they build in unincorporated areas. But application of the ordinance, however, requires the supervisors and a special district to approve the measure.

The three communities will be the first in the county area to use this type of park financing.

Since the park fees will eventually be passed on to the homeowners, the average buyer will pay $296 for parks when he purchases his home, said officials.

Other park development costs will come from such sources as property taxes, state and federal grants, and possibly bond issues.

Recital scheduled

Violinist Daniel Strang will present a recital at Hillcrest Homes, La Verne, at 7 p.m. today. He will be accompanied by pianist Carol Hendrixson. The public is invited.

The program will include a Dvorak dance arranged by Fritz Kreisler and "Liebesfreud" by Kreisler.

Strang is a graduate of the Indiana University School of Music.

Musical outreach program to debut

A new form of outreach will debut June 25 at Calvary Baptist Church Ontario.

"Man Against Himself" is the title of the open-air concert to be put on by the evangelical group, "Today, Eternity And Man" or TEAM

With music, the group weaves the story of man and his dissatisfaction with life, beginning with common emotions, and leading to Christ. Rock masterpieces from Stevie Wonder, Al Stewart, Moody Blues, Chicago, Aerosmith, John Lennon, Doobie Brothers, Temptations, Rolling Stones and the rock opera "Superstar" will be featured.

The group, consisting of a four-piece brass section, four-piece rythm section, three-girl chorus and two male leads, will be playing outside of Calvary at 730 N. Mountain Ave., at 7 p.m. Admission is free, however, there will be an offering.

"This is not Christian music" admits Pastor Art Waeterling, "But the theme concludes with Jesus as the way of life."

Musical adventure in a magical land

The "Rapture Repertory Group" will be at the Christian Chapel of Walnut Valley Sunday at 6 p.m. to present the musical adaptation of "The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe."

The story involves four children and their adventures in a magical land of Narnia, where it is always winter but never Christmas. While in Narnia, the children become involved in the struggle between the White Witch, representing the powers of darkness, and Aslan, the lion, representing Christ.

At the climax of the struggle, Aslan lays down his life as a ransom for the life of one of the children whose deeds as a traitor bring him under condemnation unto death. Aslan, in his resurrection, demonstrates the final victory of the risen Saviour over the powers of darkness.

As ye rip so shall ye sew

On the fourth Tuesday of each month from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., 13 members of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the First Christian Church of Pomona meet in room 24 at the church to mend.

They distribute torn shirts, underwear, jeans, pajamas and linens from a giant cardboard box and get busy, two at sewing machines and the remainder with needle in hand.

They're mending clothes and linens for the youngsters who live at LeRoy Boys' Home in La Verne. Staff members gather the ripped articles and deliver them to the church for the "mending aunties" to fix.

"We started repairing clothes for LeRoys when it first opened back in 1946," said Eva Haworth, president of the "mending aunties" since 1971.

"None of the original aunties are with us now. They used to go up to the home to do the mending. Pretty soon they needed larger quarters, so we arranged to use the church classroom."

Mrs. Haworth, Pomona, said the group was dubbed the "mending aunties" because all staff members at LeRoys are called "aunt" and "uncle" by the boys.

"They felt that because we were helping, too, we should be called aunts. We do all their mending," said Mrs. Haworth.

She keeps a record.

"Sometimes we mend 100 articles in one session. We average more than 1,000 pieces a year. We do everything but socks. They take too long," she explained.

The "mending aunties" refuse to use iron-on patches to repair torn jeans. Instead, they have boxes of various patch material which they cut and meticulously sew into place. If the knees in a pair of jeans are too bad, they just cut the pant legs off and convert the jeans into a pair of shorts.

Lotta Collins, known as the "jacket lady" because she specializes in repairing torn jackets, lives in Pomona and sometimes takes the jackets home if she can't finish them during a Tuesday session.

Mrs. Haworth, who helped her husband operate a sewing machine store in El Monte for years, learned to mend during the depression. "We had lots of it, too," she recalled.

She has four children, 13 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

"We take turns bringing birthday cakes," said Mrs. Haworth.

NABBED AT SECOND

Chicago Cubs' Bill Buckner dives into second base head first trying to stretch a single into a double in seventh inning, but is called out by umpire Ed Sudol as Bill Russell applies the tag. Chicago rallied for four runs in ninth to best L.A., 7-3.

Dodgers falter

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — Bill Buckner returned to Dodger Stadium Friday night and gave a little needle to Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda.

"We don't have a lot of speed or power but we have good pitching and defense the Big Cub in the Sky is looking over us," Buckner said after the Cubs won the opening game of the weekend series between the National League division leaders.

The Cubs extended their lead in the National League East to six games over the St. Louis Cardinals while the Dodgers' lead over Cincinnati in the West was reduced to 6½ thanks to Chicago's 7-3 victory.

Friday's decision came down to a battle of relief pitchers as Chicago's amazing Bruce Sutter picked up his third victory to go with 17 saves as his teammates battered Dodger relief ace Charlie Hough for four runs in top of the ninth inning.

Sutter, who lowered his incredible earned run average to 0.75 in 2 1/3 innings, actually gave up the game-tying hit to pinch-hitter Reggie Smith in the bottom of the seventh but the forkball artist struck out five Dodgers including the side in the bottom of the ninth.

In 59 2/3 innings on the mound this season, Sutter has allowed only five earned runs, 32 hits, seven walks and has struck out 72 batters.

"I call my out pitch a split finger fastball," Sutter said, "because I throw it faster than a forkball. It comes in like a fastball and then all of a sudden it breaks. I learned it from Fred Martin, our roving pitching instructor."

Asked about his amazing walk-strikeout ratio, Sutter added, "I've had good control in the past but nothing like this. I'm getting the first pitch over pretty regularly."

Chicago broke loose in the ninth after losing pitcher Stan Wall walked Bobby Murcer.

Hough came in but he obviously didn't have it this time. Jerry Morales singled to left to send Murcer to third. Manny Trillo, the National League's top batter at .382, followed with a triple to center when Rick Monday couldn't make a shoestring catch to make it 5-3.

George Mitterwald doubled to score Trillo and Ivan DeJesus singled to send Mitterwald home for the final tally.

Murcer ripped a two-run homer in the first inning and he started the Cubs in the fourth by beating out an infield single, scoring on Trillo's sacrifice fly.

The Dodgers knocked rookie Mike Krukow of San Gabriel out in the sixth inning when Lee Lacy singled and Steve Garvey connected on his 14th homer - fifth in six games to make it 3-2.

An error by third baseman Steve Ontiveros led to the Dodger run in the seventh. After Johnny Oates sacrificed Glenn Burke to second, Smith singled to right off of Sutter to tie the score to thrill the 52,487 Dodger Stadium fans on Cap Night.

Buckner, who is obviously limping from his ankle injuries, contributed a double and single to Chicago's attack.

"I though we would be OK," Buckner said about the Cubs. "But I would be a fool to say we would be in first place at this time. This team is no fluke and is improving all the time."

DODGER DATA — Tommy John (6-4) will challenge former UCLA star Bill Bonham (6-5) in tonight's 7 p.m. contest. Sunday's probables are Don Sutton (7-2) vs. Rick Reuschel (9-2) on Camera Day.

Smith (pulled muscle), Steve Yeager (bad back) and Davey Lopes (bad side) were all missing from the starting Dodger lineup.

Murcer hit four home runs at Dodger Stadium last year when he was with the Giants

Rudi has four hits

Angels win in 10 innings

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Joe Rudi cracked his fourth hit, a two-out double in the 10th inning, and scored the winning run on a single by Dave Chalk as the California Angels defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 7-5 in a rain-delayed game Friday night.

Rudi doubled to the left-field corner off Bill Castro, 7-4, then broke a 5-5 tie by barely beating Von Joshua's throw to the plate on Chalk's single to center. Bobby Bonds delivered Chalk with his third double and fourth hit of the night.

The start of the contest was delayed one hour and 38 minutes by rain.

The Brewers scored twice in the eighth to tie the score at 55. Ken McMullen singled and Steve Brye doubled before pinch-hitter Von Joshua followed with a two-run double.

The Angels took a 5-3 lead in the top of the eighth on a two out, two-run single by Mario Guerrero.

The Brewers took a 2-0 firstinning lead on an error by Angels second baseman Jerry Remy and two-out singles by Sal Bando, Cecil Cooper and McMullen.

The Angels tied it in the second on doubles by Bonds and Guerrero and a pair of infield outs.

The Brewers took a 3-2 lead with a fifth inning run on an RBI single by Cecil Cooper before the Angels tied it at 3-3 an inning later on singles by Orlando Ramirez, Rudi, and Bando.

Rudi got the first hit of the game, a bloop single that fell in front of Jim Wohlford in a slippery left field with two out in the Angels' first. Tony Solaita then flied deep to Steve Brye in center, retiring the side.

The two unearned runs scored by the Brewers in their half brought to 17 the number of runs that Remy's last six errors have cost the Angels. Remy bobbled Yount's hopper leading off the inning.

Remy left the game an inning later. The Angels said he had pulled a rib cage muscle running out a grounder in the first. Ramirez replaced him.

The Brewers wasted leadoff singles by Don Money and Sixto Lezcano in the third as the next two hitters were routine outs to the outfield and Ron Jackson made a fine play to retire McMullen on a slow hopper.

ASU reaches W.S. finale

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Darrell Jackson limited Southern Illinois to three hits Friday night and Brandt Humphry knocked in three runs as top-rated Arizona State avenged its only College World Series defeat with a 10-0 thumping of the Salukis.

The victory sends Arizona State, 56-12, into tonight's championship game against South Carolina, 43-11-1. South Carolina received a bye into the finals.

In the first four innings, Arizona State pounded out 13 hits and built a 7-0 lead against Dewey Robinson, who had topped the Sun Devils 3-2 in a second-round game.

Humphry collected four hits including a two-run homer in the fifth and a triple, and designated hitter Jamie Allen knocked in two runs as did All-America second baseman Bob Horner.

Arizona State's 19 hits fell three short of the one-game series record. The Sun Devils had at least one hit in every inning and collected four each in the third and fourth.

Jackson, a loser to Southern Illinois earlier, struck out four and allowed only one runner as far as third base.

Steve Michael added a solo home run for Arizona State and was one of three Sun Devils with three hits.

Crum interested in UCLA job

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Denny Crum, coach of the University of Louisville basketball team, said Friday he would consider an offer to become head coach at UCLA, but that he has not been contacted by anyone from UCLA.

Crum, once an assistant under former UCLA Coach Johnny Wooden, has been a target of speculation since Gene Bartow said earlier this week he was resigning to start a basketball program at the University of Alabama-Birmingham.

"I have not been approached by anybody," Crum said. "Sure I'd consider it. You'd have to talk to them, wouldn't you? If the circumstances were right, I wouldn't object to going back to California."

Crum, a native of San Francisco, played at Pierce Junior College and at UCLA under Wooden. Since joining Louisville in 1971, he has led the Cardinals to three NCAA playoffs. Ironically, each time Louisville has been knocked out by UCLA.

Dave Hart, Louisville's athletic director, said Friday that no one from UCLA had asked him for permission to negotiate with Crum.

Title to launch 'Cup upset bid

INGLEWOOD — While Crystal Water will undoubtedly be the favorite in today's Hollywood Gold Cup, trainer Keith Stucki will not discount the possibility of an upset by his horse, Ancient Title.

"I believe he's just as good now as he was two weeks ago, when he won the Bel Air," he said. "This is the race we've really pointed him for since the Santa Anita (Handicap) and I'm confident he'll run well."

Title, indeed, has performed impressively in attempting to capture his second Gold Cup title of his seven-year career. California's all-time leading money winner ($1,082,716) won his first in 1975 as he trounced tne rest of the field by four-and-a-half lengths in 1:59 1/5.

Two weeks ago, Ancient Title battled Rajab the entire way down the stretch in the 1⅛-mile Bel Air, prevailing by a nose at the wire in 1:47&3/5.

Since then, Title has drilled impressively with works of 1:24&3/5 and :46&4/5.

This will be the fourth time the veteran horse has been entered in Gold Cup competition, dating back to 1974 when he placed second behind Tree of Knowledge. Last year, he laid back in the pack throughout the race and failed to make his move, settling for a sixth-place finish.

Should Sandy Hawley and Ancient Title be successful in his upset bid and capture the $210,000 top money, he would climb into eighth place among all-time money-winners. The gelding in that case would pass such thoroughbred superstars as Citation, Fort Marcy, Cougar II, Foolish Pleasure, Carry Back, Susan's Girl, and Nashua.

However, in order to achieve this honor, Title would have to defeat the favored Crystal Water and Laffit Pincay, Jr.

While winning the Hollywood Derby as a three-year old in 1976, Crystal Water was not shipped East for the Triple Crown races by his trainer, Roger Clapp.

This seems to have been a smart move, since the lat developing horse has come on strong to win the Santa Anita Handicap and the Californian at Hollywood Park.

Pay Tribute, who won last year's Gold Cup, heads the rest of the Cup hopefuls while packing 120 pounds and jockey Bill Shoemaker will be looking for his seventh Gold Cup triumph aboard Mark's Place.

Lakers sign second pick

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brad Davis, the Lakers' second pick in the recent National Basketball Association draft, signed a multiyear contract with the team Friday, the Lakers announced.

Davis, a 6-foot-3 guard from the University of Maryland, was the 15th players selected in the draft.

Los Angeles has not signed its other two first-round selections, North Carolina State forward Kenny Carr and Duquesne guard Norm Nixon.

Sharp putting gives Hubert Green U.S. Open lead

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Hubert Green took a look ahead to the third round after his solid 67 had established a one-stroke lead Friday at the halfway point of the 77th United States Open Golf Championship.

"I've never won a major," said Green, who came out of the pack using an ancient green-handled putter as his principal weapon.

"If I'm in this position tomorrow, everybody is gonna be asking, 'Can he hold up? Will he take the gas?'

"Well, I just hope I'm here in the position where you can ask me those questions."

HAPPY ARNIE

Arnold Palmer shows his feelings as he sinks a putt for a birdie on the 8th hole at Southern Hills Country Club in Tulsa Friday during the U.S. Open

It was obvious that Green would have some ready answers.

Although he's won 11 tour titles, he feels he hasn't received due recognition through his lack of a major championship.

"I can't be considered a great player," Green has said before, "because I haven't won a major championship. You can't be a great player without winning those, and winning more than once."

He's now in his best position ever to make a run at the big one that has eluded him.

Green, troubled by erratic putting all year, one-putted eight times before posting his two-round total of 136, four under par on the deceptively tough, heat-scorched, 6,873-yard Southern Hills Country Club course.

Just one shot back halfway through the chase for the most prestige-laden and dearly-coveted title the game can offer was Terry Diehl, a one-tournament winner from Rochester, N.Y., who composed a 68 and had a 137 total.

"I'm just going to play like hell for the next two rounds," said Diehl, who saved his card in his rookie season with a victory in the 1974 San AntonioTexas Open, which he called "your proverbial back-to-thewall story."

Green and Diehl were among the seven men who shared the first round lead. The others lashed their ways to varied and assorted fates while the biggest gun in the game—awesome Jack Nicklaus—wheeled into position for a shot at a record-matching fourth American National championship.

Nicklaus, holder of a record 14 major professional titles but hungry as ever to add to that total, dropped a 15-foot eagle putt on the 560-yard 16th hole on his way to a 68 that put him back in business at 142, six shots back.

"That eagle gave me new life in the tournament," he said. "I'm definitely in 14. 142 is never a bad score in the U.S. Open. I can't remember an Open in which 142 wasn't very much in contention."

Tom Purtzer, one of the previously obscure young men who dominated the early season, came on with a second consecutive 69 and was third alone at 138.

Gary Player, the gritty little South African who wants so desperately to win this one again, once pitched in from deep, clinging rough for a birdie that highlighted his 67. He was tied for fourth at 139 with veteran tourist Rod Funseth and Sam Adams, who cheerfully describes himself as "the leading, left-handed touring pro from Boone, N.C." Funseth shot a 70 while the lefty Adams scored four birdies in a row, once coming within one inch of holing out a seven iron approach shot, in his 69.

Al Geiberger, author of that landmark, record-setting 59 a week ago, had a 71—despite a double bogey six on that troublesome, much discussed and often cursed 18th hole—and was five shots back at 141.

"I got pretty tired, my legs were getting weak," said Pate, who has been able to play only once since the Masters.

PGA champion Dave Stockton had a 75-153 and failed to make it into the last two rounds. So did the three veterans who were special invitees who hold such prominent places in the Open's history. Tommy Bolt, 65-year-old Sam Snead and Julius Boros all were at 153. Snead and Bolt shot second round 78s, Boros a 76.

"I was very lucky," Green said of his putting round. "I've been putting terrible all year. That birdie putt I made on the second hole, about 35 feet, that might be the longest putt I've made all year. It gives a lift to see one like that go in.

"I feel I'm playing good. There's still two rounds to go. Some players tend to get a little lazy at this point and fall back.

"I hope I don't. I hope I don't just sit on my little duff and let somebody catch me. I want to go forward. I want to make those guys try to catch me, not me fall back to them.

"I want to improve my position. I don't want to fall back."

That birdie on No. 2 set him off. He got another from 10 feet on the third, twice saved par when he missed the green, then got a seven iron approach to within six feet for birdie on No. 9.

But he missed the green on the 10th and drove into the rough on the 13th and bogeyed both. A two iron shot to three feet produced a birdie on the 14th and he took the lead alone with an 8-10 foot birdie putt from his crouched and curious stance on the 16th hole.

Diehl, 27, is in his fourth full year of tour activity. His only victory, in the 1974 Texas Open, came under the most dramatic conditions. A rookie, he had played poorly and needed a to win $3,000 in that, the last event of the year, to retain his playing rights. And he won the tournament.

"I feel I'm in good position as long as I can stay near the lead and make a move from there," said the skinny veteran who won the 1966 PGA national championship, was second in the U.S. Open last year and has a very good record in the major championships.

"I more or less grind them out in the major championships," said the steady man who has made a career of avoiding mistakes. "In the majors, you never have to shoot a super-hot last round."

Tom Weiskopf, a recent winner, had a 71 that put him in a large group with Nicklaus at 142. "I'm still playing good," Weiskopf insisted despite a mildly erratic effort that included an eagle and a double bogey in one stretch of three holes.

Arnold Palmer, the 47-year-old living legend who was only one shot off the first round lead, also was at 142 after a 72 that included another bogey on the final hole.

Johnny Miller all but counted himself out of it after a 73 put him at 144 and in a tie with Hale Irwin, Lee Trevino and others.

"I'm just not playing that well," said Miller, who once took three strokes to dig himself out of the soft sand of a bunker. It led to a triple bogey six.

"I just tried to get too cute with the shot," Miller said.

Irwin shot 71 and Trevino rallied for a 70.

Tom Watson, the current Masters champion and easily the outstanding player in the game this year, had a 72 that left him a distant 10 strokes back at 146.

Defending champion Jerry Pate, sidelined most of the year with a pinched nerve in his neck, fell victim to the strength-sapping heat. He shot a 76 and just made the cut for the final two rounds at 148.

UNHAPPY MILLER

Johnny Miller drops his sun visor down over his eyes Friday in disgust after failing to hit his ball out of sand trap at U.S. Open. Miller took a triple bogey on the hole.

Quotes

"I believe many people feel I need psychiatric care for leaving UCLA, but others feel I'll be much happier here." — Basketball Coach Gene Bartow, after leaving the prestigious California school to establish an intercollegiate program at the University of Albama-Birmingham, which has only club and intramural sports.

"My breaking ball is flat, my fast ball has lost its velocity and the changeup has nothing."—pitcher Pat Zachry, traded by Cincinnati to the New York Mets, discussing nerve damage to the elbow of his pitching arm.

U.S. net team ousts S. Africa

EASTBOURNE, England (AP — The United States, led by Chris Evert, defeated South Africa 3-0 Friday and gained the final of the Federation Women's Lawn Tennis Cup.

Miss Evert and Billie Jean King took only 76 minutes between them to score singles victories in the semi-finals. Ms. King took only 23 minutes, not counting a rain delay between sets, to beat Greer Stevens 6-2, 6-0 and Miss Evert downed Brigitte Cuypers 6-1, 6-1 in 53 minutes to clinch the best-of-three series.

Then Miss Evert and Rosemary Casals won the doubles, topping Linky Boshoff and Ilano Kloss 6-0, 3-6, 9-7.

Noisy anti-apartheid demonstrations going on outside the stadium, made it difficult for the players.

When Miss Stevens, 20, came onto the center court with Ms. King the demonstrations outside the stadium were the noisiest of the week.

The continual shouting of "South Africa Out" and "Down with Apartheid" went on all through the match. Afterwards Miss Sevens said, "I tried not to let the noise worry me too much. I knew what they were shouting but I did not take too much notice."

Ms. King, 33, took a 3-0 lead in the opening set, taking advantage of the South African's mistakes.

The match began 90 minutes after schedule because of rain. The rain caused another 23 minute hold-up as soon as Ms. King had taken the first set 6-2.

When play resumed, Ms. King, who was wearing slacks under he sleeveless tennis dress against the cold, quickly regained control and whipped through the second set without loss of a game.

The 22-year-old Miss Evert soon made sure of her team's place in the final Saturday when she beat Miss Cuypers, who hardly was able to string two good shots together.

U.S. captain Vicki Berner said: "The noise from outside the stadium surely was not necessary. At least it did not put our players off too much."

Although the doubles was meaningless, it carried unusual interest because it was a match between the second and third seeded pairs in the women's doubles at Wimbledon.

The Americans had chances to win early in the final set but Miss Evert, serving for a 5-2 lead, dropped her service to give the South Africans another chance.

Miss Boshoff and the lefthanded Miss Kloss drew even at 4-4 and then matched the Americans shot for shot until Miss Kloss finally lost her service in the 16th game.

THE NEWEST RED — Pitcher Tom Seaver tucks in his Cincinnati Reds uniform for the first time Friday after joining the club in Montreal. The Reds' newest member is expected to get a starting mound assignment today.

Seaver tickled pink to be a Red

MONTREAL (AP) — The rich, cackling laughter gave him away. Tom Seaver was in a Cincinnati Reds uniform and tickled pink.

"I can't get used to all this red. I never thought that day would happen in my life," said the fireballing right-hander after joining forces with Cincinnati Reds Friday.

The five-time 20-game winner who put magic in the New York Mets uniform made his official entrance as a Cincinnati Red when he slipped into the back door of the clubhouse at 5:35 p.m. unannounced and almost unnoticed.

Then came the crush.

Team captain Pete Rose, wearing a T-shirt with the lettering "Hustle makes it happen" was among the first to seek him out. "I want to lodge a protest. Can I get back that 0-for-4 and three strikeouts?" grinned Rose, referring to Seaver's last outing against Cincinnati when he handcuffed the National League champs with a four-hitter.

"You think they look bad on us," giggled Joe Morgan, "wait until you see what they look like on you."

He tried on a pair of 34-waist pants. "Better make it 36," said Seaver.

Then he waited for a flood of questions. They never came.

"Well, somebody say something. Everybody is stunned. You guys are more in disbelief than I am," he said.

Manager Sparky Anderson's face lit up when the three-time Cy Young Award winner walked into his office. "Am I happy to see you, " said the white-haired Anderson, extending a hand.

"It's great to be here," said Seaver.

Seaver makes his debut as a Red Saturday when he takes he 7-3 record against Santo Alcala and the Montreal Expos.

Mets might re-acquire Kingman

NEW YORK (AP) - Slugger Dave Kingman, who had demanded to be traded from the New York Mets and got his wish when he was sent to the San Diego Padres Wednesday night, wouldn't mind returning to the Mets after this season.

Joe McDonald, Mets' general manager, said Thursday night that Kingman has asked the New York Mets to consider signing him after the end of the baseball season in October if he remains a free agent.

"Dave likes New York, he likes the Met organization and he's crazy about Joe Torre (Mets' new manager)," McDonald said. "When I called him to tell him offically of the deal, he then related his feeling to me about next year. Dave said he didn't know if he would sign with the Padres or anyone and requested me to pass the word on to Mr. Grant that he would like us to consider him if he is a free agent in October."

Kingman referred to M. Donald Grant, chairman of the board for the Mets with whom he was unable to agree on a 1977 contract.

Zachry's elbow is ailing

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Pat Zachry, a key figure in the trade that sent Tom Seaver to the Cincinnati Reds, expressed confidence Friday that his ailing right arm will be sound once he conquers nerve damage in his elbow.

The ailment, he said, developed during spring training. "It's getting better but I don't think it will ever be pain-free again."

Zachry said the elbow problem stems from off-season surgery to repair a hernia. "I couldn't do anything for two months after the operation. When I started throwing in January, the arm went tight. At spring training, I started favoring my elbow and fell into a lot of bad habits.

"My breaking ball is flat, my fast ball has lost its velocity and the changeup has nothing."

When told of Zachry's comments, Joe McDonald, the Mets' general manager, said he talked with Zachry Friday morning and the right-hander assured him his arm was fine. "He told me arm feels okay," said McDonald. "And In my talks with Cincinnati, I had never been apprised of anything wrong with his arm.

"We'll have to investigate this further."

McDonald said he would have Zachry talk to the Mets' team physician, Dr. James Parkes, before Friday night's game here against Houston.

Zachry flew to New York Friday and was scheduled to pitch for the Mets against the Astros.

Zachry, who helped the Reds win their second straight world championship last year, said he was temporarily stunned when informed of the trade. "At first, I was mad. I didn't want to go to New York. I thought, 'Why me?' The last eight years, I've dreamed, sweated and cried to get here and then they say, 'See you later.'"

During the flight, Zachry scanned a sports page and swore softly after reading of Seaver's tearful farewell to New York. He is aware that winning games will not necessarily win him fans at Shea Stadium, where Seaver has reigned as the Mets' leader for the past decade.

Zachry said he refuses to place added pressure on himself by trying to replace Seaver.

"I'm not going to worry about what he's done," said the 6-foot-5 Texan. "All I know is I'm here and they must have wanted me. Joe Torre (manager of the Mets) told me the deal would not have gone through if they had not gotten me."

Zachry doesn't see Seaver as the savior of the Cincinnati pitching staff. "Seaver will win his 20, maybe 30, but he's getting old. Cincinnati fans think he brings and instant pennant. That's a bunch of baloney!"

Zachry, who shared National League rookie of the year honors last season with a 14-7 record and a 2.74 earned run average, said the Reds have a tough assignment overcoming a 7½-game deficit to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It doesn't happen overnight," said the 25-year-old, among four Reds dealt to the Mets in exchange for the threetime Cy Young Award winner.

Zachry has a 3-7 record this season and expects "a poor reception," from Mets fans, embittered by the loss of Seaver. "They'll be all over me if I fall on my butt. I hope they are patient."

Zachry, speaking aboard the plane that brought him to New York, was accompanied by his fiancee, Sharron Hutchison, 26, of Waco, Tex. The two obtained a marriage license Wednesday, hours before Zachry was traded with utility infielder Doug Flynn, and minor league outfielders Steve Henderson and Dan Norman.

He and Miss Hutchison postponed the wedding. "It was supposed to be next Thursday," said Zachry, "but we (the Mets) will be playing in Chicago that day."

Zachry said he viewed the deal as "a brand new start. We're in last place. We can't go anywhere but up. I may not win 20 games, but I'll win my share."

Wolsink goes for 4th

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Gerrit Wolsink will be shooting for his fourth consecutive United States Motocross Grand Prix victory at Carlsbad Raceway Sunday, but he says No. 4 will be hard to get.

Wolsink, a dentist from Holland, will be facing the best riders in the world, including Belgium's Roy DeCoster and Finland's Hekki Mikkola.

Going into the race, Wolsink ranks third in the world championship riding standings, 43 points back of Mikkola and 10 behind DeCoster.

"This year the battle for the world championship has been tougher than ever," Wolsnk said. "Roger and I have had to work harder on the Suzuki team because the new bikes from Yamaha and Honda are so fast.

"There are 14 regular grand prix competitors coming to Carlsbad and every one of them is capable of winning.

"Then if you add to that the number of Americans who have the potential to beat the best in the world," Wolsink continued, "you can see that this grand prix is going to be the toughest of them all."

Reds take voting lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Cincinnati outfielders George Foster and Ken Griffey took the lead for two of the outfield positions in National League All-Star voting announced Friday.

Foster and Griffey surpassed two of the first-week leaders, Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals and Reggie Smith of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Pittsburgh's Dave Parker retained his lead for the third outfield post.

Parker leads all outfielders with 365,505 votes while Foster, the most valuable player in last year's game, has 355,005

Dunn, Flood win tourney

The '77 Mixed Doubles Handicap Tournament, sponsored by the Citrus Belt Bowling Associations, both men's and women's, was held at Garey Center Bowl in Pomona last weekend.

This year's tournament had an entry of 367 mixed couples to vie for a share of the prize fund that totaled $2,642.40.

The champions were Dela Dunn and Raule Flood, both of San Bernardino, with a 1330 handicap total that earned the tournament trophy, plus first-place winnings.

Entering with a 171 average, Dela rolled the ladies' high scratch series of 632, including a 247 game. Dela recently represented the CBWBA as A Div. Champion in the State BVL Roll-Off. Just two pins shy of this leading total were Mickey and Bob Harquess of Yucca Valley.

Though placing third in the handicap standings, Clara Rettenmeyer, Sunnymead, paired with Ramon Novarro, Riverside, to claim the high scratch total of 1212.

Ramon, 194 average, compiled games of 203-202-249 to total 654, the high tournament series. Leta Hicks, Rialto, the '77 CBWBA Princess Tournament winner and 162-average bowler, added fame to her title with the ladies' high tournament game of 254.

Bowling with Earl Joliff, also of Rialto, they settled in sixth position with their 1288 handicap total. DeVonne Armstrong led all individual game competition with the tournament high of 268. He gained an ABC Century Award in the process, having entered with a 161 average.

Third and fourth winners were Dee Goldi and Tim Keheley, Rialto, 1306 total; Linda and Lary Gregory, Upland, 1294 total. Not only did the officers of the two associations cooperate in conducting the successful tournament, they combined an entry that made a good showing. Jean Dimattia, President of the CBWBA, partnered with Lou Rocca, Vice President of the CBMBA, placed seventh on the scoreboard with a 1286 total. Tied with this position were Jedith Hendon, Ontario, and Eldon Snider of Alta Loma.

DICK ROGERS

Perhaps you have seen the powdery patches called mildew on the surface of leaves and fruit.

Mildew is a tiny plant that is closely related to mold. Mildew plants are so small that separately they cannot be seen by the naked eye.

Mildew plants do not make their own food, but live on such other living plants as roses, apples, and grapes.

Their threadlike bodies cover the surface on which they grow with a network of cobweblike growths, which often appear as small white patches.

They do a great deal of harm to the stems and leaves, drying them up and making them curl and twist.

Mildew can use many different kinds of things as food, and often attack clothes and books in damp climates.

As the mildew plant grows, it sends out tiny seedlike spores, which can be carried long distances by wind and insects.

When a spore finds a material to use for food, the spore grows into a new mildew plant.

Feminists circulate flyer on rapists

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A feminist group is circulating flyers that describe uncaptured sex offenders in an effort to warn women about the possibility they can be raped.

"Part of what we are trying to do is raise consciousness in people about rape," explained Ann Pride, coordinator of Pittsburgh Action Against Rape. "We want them to be aware that rapists look like everyone else. They're not all maniacal people who hang out in dark alleys."

Members of PAAR handed out 2,000 handbills to women during lunch hour Tuesday. The leaflets were emblazoned with warnings: "Women Beware! Naked Harry is stalking the streets. And watch for Bill, the computer programmer with the limp. He's loose, too."

Top billing went to "Naked Harry," a black youth who masturbates in front of women and children while wearing only a silver chain around his neck. He has appeared for the last two years in eastern Allegheny County.

"Someone who has been running around naked for two years may want to get caught. But I can also see someone like that taking the next step and raping someone," said PAAR member Christine Fowley.

The leaflets also described a rapist named Bill, reputed to be a computer programmer who walks with a limp.

But most of the descriptions were not so specific, such as one of a thin, white male, about 5-foot-6, with blond hair and blue eyes. The group has not decided whether to include the names of convicted sex offenders.

Pittsburgh police were "noncommittal" toward the flyers and said the incidence of rape is not increasing, as PAAR claims.

"I'm not going to jump up and say we have several rapists on the loose," said Sgt. John Flannigan, head of the city's youth and sex assault squad.

He said there was a 13 per cent drop in reported rapes in 1975 and last year's number of assaults — 287 — was about average.

PAAR, however, said reported sex assaults are up 21 per cent since last year and that represents only about 40 per cent of the actual rapes.

Alaska oil pipeline

Environmentalist happy

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Robert LeResche was a fish and game biologist when Congress gave the green light to the trans-Alaska pipeline. LeResche, like most wildlife biologists, feared an ecological disaster.

"It's sort of embarrassing, but looking back on it the thing wasn't all that bad," he says now.

LeResche, who is now Alaska's natural resources commissioner, is quick to add: "There's another way to look at it, of course. We were fairly successful in imposing environmental controls on them."

Government officials and the oil companies agree that these restrictions were unprecedented and expensive. The 800-mile-long pipeline — built at a cost of $7.7 billion so far — is virtually complete. On Monday, oil is to begin flowing south from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez.

The project generated more concern about potential environmental damage than any other single construction project in U.S. history. It took then-Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's vote to break a tie in the U.S. Senate and permit passage of legislation clearing the way for construction.

The end of construction doesn't mean the controversy is over, although most state and federal officials involved in monitoring the pipeline construction believe Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. has done a good job.

"We have pushed the frontiers of the state of the art of pipeline construction out to the absolutely limit of economic viability," says Chuck Champion, state pipeline coordinator. Champion was the state official responsible for monitoring pipeline construction.

Jim Kowalsky, Alaska field representative for Friends of the Earth, objects to questions like: "Do you think it will work?"

He responds: "Call me back in 35 years. It if works the first day, that doesn't mean it's going to work forever." But he adds: "I guess it will function."

There's one thing the environmental groups, industry and the government agree on: The all-weather construction road bridging the mighty Yukon and leading to the Arctic Ocean will have a much greater impact on the Arctic than the pipeline. No decision has been made yet on when the road — the United States' only road to the Arctic — will be opened to the public or whether access should be limited.

Reservations about the pipeline itself center on oil spill contingency plans and the tanker ships which will carry the oil south.

Champion says it's a shame that the pipeline was built to such exacting standards only to "get the oil to the dock at Valdez and pour the oil into a 1935 technology-type tanker and send it off somewhere."

Fishermen in Prince William Sound, site of the port of Valdez, are concerned about the gales that frequent the area. Questions have been raised about the ability of supertankers to negotiate Valdez Narrows, the entrance to the port.

There are fears that a tanker might run into Middle Rock, a rock near the center of the channel. Tankers have 900 yards of water between the rock and the shoreline.

The Coast Guard set up a one-way traffic system for ships, and it believes the transit will be relatively easy. Normal daily traffic will be three tankers.

Valdez Mayor Lynn Chrystal, a National Weather Service forecaster, says news reports have exaggerated the winds that occasionally buffet the area. The wind, according to critics of the Valdez port operation, makes transit of the Sound and the Narrows dangerous.

Purdy, who has served as captain of the ports in New York, Seattle and Honolulu, says the Valdez port will be closed when sustained winds reach 40 knots in the Narrows, even though tankers could probably get through in 70-knot winds.

Even with the wind, Chrystal says: "If you can't hit 900 yards of water with a tanker, then you can't drive a car in an airplane hanger without hitting the walls."

Alyeska has set up oil spill contingency plans for land and sea. But Gov. Jay Hammond believes a state system of fines ranging from $1 a gallon up to $10 a gallon will be much more effective than the contingency plan. Under the fine system, the state doesn't have to prove damage. All it has to show is the amount of the spill.

The tankers going into Valdez will be U.S.-built and staffed by U.S. crews, because of the Jones Act. That act requires the use of American vessels for shipping between U.S. ports.

But the oil companies already plan to ask permission to use foreign tankers because there are not enough U.S. tankers. And if President Carter decides to allow shipment of some of the oil to Japan, foreign tankers would be permitted unless prohibited by Congress.

Under the act passed to permit pipeline construction, the oil cannot be shipped overseas unless the President decides it is in the national interest.

While Champion and other state officials believe Alyeska generally has complied with environmental rules, Champion says he "had to do some head knocking."

Frank Fisher, in charge of environmental control for Alyeska, says Alyeska did make some mistakes and workers "occasionally were sloppy." But he says everything is being cleaned up.

Fisher and Champion say the loss of wildlife associated with the project was tragic. Both attribute it to feeding of animals by workers. Some bears had to be killed when they began living off handouts.

The fate of migratory caribou herds received national attention when the environmentalists got a court order blocking the project in the early 1970s. LeResche says no one knows for sure yet that the caribou will learn to cross the pipeline during their seasonal migrations. Fisher believes "the caribou couldn't care less about the line."

He also notes that Alyeska has built 450 designated moose crossings — each had to be 10 feet high. "We thought they could be a little lower and the moose could duck, but the biologists insisted."

What to do with Alaskan road?

PRUDHOE BAY, Alaska (AP) — Thanks to the trans-Alaska pipeline, the United States has a road to the top of the world. Now the question is what to do with it.

Environmentalists say it presents a far greater threat to the Arctic than the pipeline and its construction ever did. For once, oil men agree.

But there is pressure to open the road for tourism. And the trucking industry opposes the state's plan to impose a toll on industrial vehicles.

Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., which built the 367-mile-long road from the Yukon River to Prudhoe Bay on the Arctic Ocean, has called off its plans to turn the road over to the state.

Alyeska president Dr. W.J. Darch says the consortium feels turning the road over to the state this year "would be a bit unfair. We've got to give them lead time."

Robert LeResche, state natural resources commissioner, concedes: "We aren't really anxious to have it now." He and Gov. Jay Hammond want to study what impact there will be if they open up a pristine area to potential hordes of tourists.

LeResche says "clearly the largest long-term impact of the pipeline is the haul road." Jim Kowalsky, Alaska field representative for Friends of the Earth, agreed.

Darch also is concerned about security problems along the pipeline that could result from opening the road to the public.

The first oil is to be pumped into this end of the pipe on Monday. It won't reach the southern end, at Valdez, for a month or more.

The road, crossing the first bridge ever built over the Yukon River, opens up an area almost as large as the state of Texas.

Alyeska has permitted a few reporters to drive the road, and it's quite an experience. Imagine barreling down a fairly smooth dirt road to see a grizzly bear in the right lane — on your side — and a truck coming in the left lane.

The road crosses the Arctic Circle and the majestic Brooks Range, whose peaks reach 8,000 feet. The scenery isn't necessarily more spectacular than in some national parks in the lower 48, but there's a feeling about where you are.

The pipeline is visible in some areas along the road, although Alyeska has spent millions to hide it.

Once you cross the Brooks Range, the scenery changes abruptly. There are few trees even at lower elevations; just miles and miles of tundra. That monotony is largely unrelieved even when you reach the Arctic Ocean here, since it's frozen much of the year.

Once here there's nowhere to go. Alyeska doesn't permit unescorted visits of the Prudhoe oil fields. And tours must be prearranged.

Wiseman — population around 12 — is about the closest thing to a town along the road. June Reakoff, whose husband Rick is a hunting guide, says she's always feared the road more than the pipeline.

Before the pipeline, you walked into Wiseman or flew. Now the road is within a mile of town. Up the hill few miles in Linda Creek, population 1, gold miner Earl Boese, in his 60s, announces to anyone who stops his opposition to closing the road or charging a toll.

"The road should be open," Boese said. "Too many things are closed already by the Nazi bureaucrats." He hasn't been happy with the government ever since aerial wolf hunting was halted.

The Natives of northern Alaska have nearly unanimously opposed opening the road because they feared an intrusion of tourists and hunters could endanger their subsistence hunting of caribou and other wildlife.

The state also objects to the high cost of maintaining the road — estimated at $6.5 million annually after an initial expense of $14 million for equipment and facilities. That doesn't include the cost of stationing state troopers along the line.

Alyeska has spent around $18 million annually for maintenance, suggesting to some that the state wouldn't maintain the standards set by the oil companies. And one of the first things you notice when you cross the Yukon and reach the state-maintained Elliott Highway is the rapid deterioration in the road surface.

The state also has noted the total lack of private facilities for food, gas or lodging along the road. Darch says Alyeska isn't going to be serving as "a motel and gas station" much longer.

"We've lived without tourist facilities (north of the Yukon) for two million years and I suspect we can get along for another one or two years without them," says Atty. Gen. Avrum Gross.

Interviews with Julie are canceled

CHICAGO (AP) — Two Chicago broadcast stations have canceled interviews with Julie Nixon Eisenhower, saying her publisher sought to impose ground rules limiting questions.

WMAQ-TV and WBBM Radio canceled the interviews scheduled for Thursday and Friday after receiving a telephone call from Simon & Schuster, publisher of Mrs. Eisenhower's "Special People," which she is publicizing on a nationwide tour.

"As a news organization, we don't enter into any agreements on what the questions will be or we don't discuss what the questions will be," said Al Snyder, executive news producer at WMAQ. "If we want to interview someone, we'll ask them what we want."

Mrs. Eisenhower was scheduled to appear on a live, five-minute interview hosted by Jorie Lueloff on WMAQ.

Ms. Lueloff, who prefers that designation, said Chris Casson from Simon & Schuster called and said that when Mrs. Eisenhower appeared on NBC's "Today Show" last week "she had been asked a lot of very rough questions about the David Frost interviews, her father and Watergate; that she didn't want to talk about those things and that would be a condition of the interview.

"I told her I didn't see how we could agree."

John Hultman, news director of all-news station WBBM, also cancelled a scheduled interview.

"Why should I accept any limitations on what I can ask?," he said. "I don't honor any ground rules. From a journalistic standpoint, it's not right. So I canceled her."

Ironically, Snyder knows Mrs. Eisenhower personally. He was Richard Nixon's media adviser for four years.

Mrs. Johnson-check on her

The woman said she was checking out of the hotel, wrote a check, handed it to Rose, and waited.

"Thank you, ma'am. Do you have some identification?" Rose asked.

"What sort of identification would you need?" the woman asked.

"Oh, just a Texas driver's license and a credit card," Rose said, still smiling.

"I'm afraid I don't have a driver's license with me," the woman said.

"How about a credit card?"

"Not with me, I'm afraid," the woman responded.

The woman rustled through her handbag and produced an insurance identification card.

"Golly," said Rose, "I'm not sure we can accept just that. If you'll wait here I'll check with our front-office manager."

The manager pointed out to Rose the name on the check — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

"I guess I should have recognized her," Rose said after the incident Thursday, "but I was only in the first grade when her husband was elected president."

"I care what happens to them and I think we can learn from their experiences," said John Quinn, who handed out the new lottery's first jackpot prize to a 19-year-old gas station attendant.

"In general, people who win lotteries have little experience with huge fortunes," he said. "Fortunately, none of the top winners has squandered the money so far. Now I hope to get them together so they can exchange advice on how to manage large sums of money."

Quinn said he has kept in touch with all nine top winners, who receive $1,000 a week for life with a guaranteed minimum of $1 million, and hopes to bring them together for their first club meeting in October.

Polanksi rape trial postponed

SANTA MONICA (AP) — The Roman Polanski rape and drug trial was postponed Friday until Aug. 9 because of a court schedule conflict.

The trial, originally scheduled for June 29, was moved back in order to avoid interrupting another case scheduled to be heard by the same judge — Superior Court Judge Laurence J. Rittenband.

Polanski, the movie director charged with raping and drugging a 13-year-old girl, did not attend Friday's hearing. He is in Tahiti scouting locations for an upcoming film he plans to direct.

In the brief court proceeding, the prosecution asked for and was granted appointment of an expert to examine and test the undergarments worn by the 13-year-old girl.

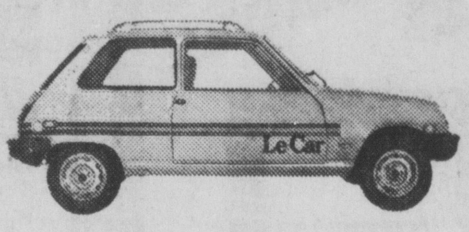
Le Car vs. La Competition



Americans are discovering what 1½ million Europeans already know. When it comes to performance, economy, comfort and engineering, Le Car is in a class by itself.

About the only thing Le Car has in common with little cars is its size.

The result is the kind of incredible handling and maneuverability that helped Le Car take first in its class in 12 out of 16 races last year.

Test drive Le Car and you'll find out why it's Le Car Hot.

It happened in Pomona

Vegetables were a lot cheaper in those days but still, in 1904, thrifty Pomonans were planting back yard gardens. Not so much perhaps to cut down on the high cost of living as it was to engage in friendly rivalry with the neighbors to see who could raise the finest crops. And on that score, according to statistics published in the December 13, 1904, issue of The Pomona Daily Review, all time honors for vegetable growing undoubtedly belong to E.E. Thurman who lived on North Garey Avenue. Can any Pomonan, before or after that illustrious year, come close to equaling this astounding record which was given front page prominence in The Review?

Despite many rumors to the contrary, Boris Spassky, who for the time being at least is now residing in France, retains a close relationship with the USSR Chess Federation.

For example, for his recent Candidate's Match with Vlastimil Hort of Czechoslovakia, held in Reykjavik, Iceland, Spassky was provided with ex-world champion Vassily Smyslov as a second.

When this writer visited the headquarters of the Soviet federation in Moscow during the time that match (with the score tied) was interrupted by Spassky's attack of appendicitis, he witnessed several telephone conversations by concerned Soviet officials with Reykjavik about Spassky's condition and future match arrangements.

There was also a visibly strong regret that Spassky's illness would prevent him from playing on the Soviet team in the then forthcoming European Team Championships.

A couple of weeks after an appendectomy was performed on Boris, the match was resumed. After a couple of draws, Spassky won the penultimate game and then drew the last game to win the match.

In the following position from the decision game, Hort, who was on the move, ran out of time and forfeited. But had he been able to continue, he could have forced an immediate win with 35 . . . BxB; 36 QxB Q-N5, threatening 37 . . . QxP mate. Spassky's 37 R-B2 would then have lost to 37 . . . QxP mate. Spassky's R-Q8ch; 38 R-B1 RxQR; 39 RxR Q-Q8ch etc. Similarly if 37 P-N3, then 37 . . . Q-R6!; 38 R-B2 RpQ8ch; 39 R-B1 QxR mate.

Stamps in the news

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

Lafayette, we are here — with a 13-cent U.S. commemorative stamp in your honor. The new stamp was issued June 13 in Charleston, S.C.

The date of June 13 marks the 200th anniversary of Lafayette's landing on the coast of South Carolina, just north of Charleston. He came to join the fight for independence of the colonies and within three months was commissioned a major general in the Continental Army.

The young Marquis was accepted as a member of George Washington's "family" and he often referred to Washington as his "adopted father." Lafayette was hailed in this country as a hero and won a special place in the heart of Americans.

The new 13-cent stamp is not the first to honor the famous Frenchman. In 1952 a commemorative marked the 175th anniversary of his arrival in America and a second stamp was issued in 1957 on the 200th anniversary of his birth.

The 1977 stamp design is based on a print of an engraving of Lafayette held by the Bettman Archives in New York. The encircled engraving is the center portion of the vignette of the stamp. Across the top, in one line of blue type, appears "Lafayette." Across the bottom, in red, is "US Bicentennial 13 Cents."

If you want to use the new system for first day cancellations by purchasing your own stamps at the local post office and affixing them to envelopes, send them to "First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, Charleston, S.C., 29401" prior to June 28.

Should you prefer the old system of the USPS affixing the new stamps to your envelope, then send your request together with a money order for 13 cents to: "Lafayette Stamp, Postmaster, Charleston, S.C., 29401." Orders must also be postmarked no later than June 28.

Coffee grinder choice 'example'

QUESTION: I am enclosing photos of a beautiful old table top coffee grinder we purchased years ago as a decorative piece for our home. The box is solid cherry and the grinder is metal with a pewter top. The box and drawer are both dovetailed. Can you tell me how valuable this grinder is today? It is in perfect working condition.

Now that coffee prices have reached $4.95 per pound in our city, we have been grinding our own each morning — saving about one-third the amount we normally use for a pot of coffee. In our opinion, the strength is the same and the coffee has a much richer flavor. Mrs. G.F.C.

ANSWER: During recent months, prices of coffee grinders in good working order have risen about as sharply as coffee prices — as others share your opinion. Your coffee grinder with its cherry box and pewter top is a choice example. Presently, these are fetching around the $75 to $85 figure in antique shops and shows.

QUESTION: I would appreciate your comments on a Civil War rifle 41 inches long, and a sword 42½ inches long, belonging to my paternal grandfather who served in the Civil War. These have been kept in excellent shape by good family friends and their descendants. The rifle has some engraving that might help in its evaluation: "US Springfield" and "US Model 1873" is engraved on the gun along with the number 143254. The sword is also engraved with "US 1864, C. Roby, Chelmsford, Mass." We possess the accompanying canteen and ammunition belt that grandfather wore.

Just out of curiosity and keen interest, are these items worth anything in the antique market? C.F.

ANSWER: They certainly are! Prices for Springfield rifles like you describe start around $300 and go up. And swords are selling in the $150-$250 range.

Today, the appeal of early weapons and accessories is perhaps as great as any of the tools or articles that are classified as collectible Americana.

QUESTION: I have a what-not that was left to me by my mother. She would be about 100 now, if she were living. The enclosed sketch (proportions bad) will show that this piece of furniture has five tiers. The finials and supporting posts are nicely turned and are threaded at the ends so that the piece can be taken apart. There is an interesting back on the top shelf, having lots of cut-outs. The shelves are graduated, each having a scolloped front. This what-not is 58 inches tall and 23 inches wide at the base, and the wood is walnut. It has never been refinished. What would an antique like this one be worth? T.N.H.

ANSWER: Your very desirable Victorian what-not is worth approximately $125-$150.

Just another 'grace-monkey'

Sister Joan: she calls herself transmissionary

BRENTWOOD, N.Y. (AP) — She calls herself a transmissionary. That causes groans, but isn't nearly so awful as grace-monkey. Sister Joan, you see, is an automobile mechanic.

What's a nice nun like her doing in a job like that?

"The last straw was when my brakes failed and I drove right through the toll gate. I finally stopped by hitting a bush. I had just had the brakes repaired three times. When they took the wheel off the brake parts fell out on the ground.

"It occurred to me that not everyone who worked in a garage was necessarily a mechanic and the results could be disastrous. I decided to be one."

That was in 1961. Since then, a number of unscrupulous garagemen have learned that a soft voice and a veil do not a victim make.

Not long ago Sister Joan took a car to get the wheels aligned because she didn't have the equipment to do it herself. The man told her — lucky for her he caught it — that she needed new ball joints, had to have 'em to order for him to align the wheels.

"Those ball joints are well within tolerance and are in fact brand new," Sister Joan aid.

He pressed on. "This is a state inspection station. The car will never pass inspection unless the ball joints are replaced."

"I too," the nun replied evently, "am a licensed state motor vehicle inspector." End of ripoff.

Even when you catch her in sweater and slacks cleaning up her shop, Sister Joan Marese (her family name has three syllables) is not one you would pick out of a crowd as a mechanic.

Not that mechanics can't also have deep, piercing brown eyes and a demeanor so gentle it is almost apologetic, but she just seems so little. She weighs barely 125 pounds and, from black oxfords to blue veil, measures 5 feet 2.

"You learn to compensate for strength," she said. "For example, I can slip a pipe over a wrench handle to increase the leverage and accomplish the same thing a larger person can.

"But my size also has its advantages. Mechanics need to get into tight places and I can do it. I don't need to raise a car to check underneath it. I just scoot under on a piece of cardboard."

Scooting under cars was not what Sister Joan had in mind when she entered the convent after graduating from college in 1951. "I really just wanted to be of service to people," she said. "As it turned out, I think I am."

Nonetheless, the Sisters of St. Joseph, the order of nuns she joined, is a teaching order and teaching third graders the three Rs was what Sister Joan did at first.

Trouble was, the century-old building in her native Brooklyn, where she taught, was falling part.

"Faucets leaked and windows stuck and, well, everything was in disrepair," she said. "Instead of calling a repairman I went to the hardware store and asked what to do and how to do it. I became fairly good at plumbing, electricity, carpentry, simple repairs. Pretty soon I was the one everybody called when something needed fixing."

All this has led to 13 years of adult education courses at the local high school in various crafts; she just finished locksmithing. But it was that moment of terror at the toll booth that charted Sister Joan's main path.

She enrolled at the Delehanty Institute in New York for a 900-hour course in auto mechanics, liked it, took another 1,100 hours, and now is the mother superior, as it were, of a

Will it slow the action?

On-the-spot tax question

RENO, Nev. (AP) — One of the big questions in the gaming industry these days is whether the Internal Revenue Service will go for on-the-spot gambling winning withholdings from bingo, keno and slot machines after 1979.

Most feel such requirements will slow down the action, irritate players and not really garner that much more revenue for the federal government.

"No way," says Nevada Congressman Jim Santini, "They will find out that it is just too much of a headache, too much paperwork and not worth the effort."

Santini was talking about a 2½-year study ordered by Congress to determine the feasibility of such withholding. And the IRS study amounts to a mound of paperwork shoveled by Nevada casinos.

On each bingo and slot payoff of $1,200 or more, and keno payouts of $1,500, a casino must fill out a W2G form with the winner's identity. An estimated 90,000 forms will be sent by the bundles to a regional IRS office in Ogden, Utah, this year. Keno payout report forms reflect the amount of the wager, which is deducted from the winnings.

But there is no such provision for slots or bingo, prompting the ire of the gaming industry.

"How in the hell can they tax payouts as income?" asked Les Kofoed, director of the Gaming Industry Association of Nevada. "When someone pumps $2,000 into a nickel slot and finally hits a $1,200 jackpot, how can you call that winning, and then pay taxes on it when you really lost $800?

"I would think that if they (the IRS) went along with the guidelines we suggested, that's $1,500 for bingo, $2,500 for keno and $5,000 for slots, then there might be some taxable revenue there. But less than that, you aren't taxing windfall earnings, you're talking about payouts without indicating losses," contended Kofoed.

Casinos are not obligated to list any winnings from table games such as blackjack, although winners are supposed to report gains.

The girs established a $600 limit for reporting on the three games, but Nevada Senators Paul Laxalt and Howard Cannon, along with Santini, pushed up the levels after some sessions with the IRS and Treasury Department.

Santini said, "If the IRS is fair about this study, and they send people out here to see what really happens, how a slot machine works and how much people really put in to get something out, then they'll realize the casinos always have been properly reporting windfall winnings and they'll see on the spot withholding isn't the best way."

A spokesman in Laxalt's office concurred: "We think the IRS will find out this reporting system is not worth the hassle, that the only real winners in gaming are the operators. If there were that many real winning players, the industry wouldn't be as profitable as it is."

Reno IRS spokesman Marty Bibb said all casinos appear to be fully complying with the present IRS study. He decline to speculate on what the outcome might be.

Sparing words is Cheever's trait

NEW YORK (AP) — When he speaks, John Cheever is sparing with his words — almost as if he were saving them for some other purpose.

His writing, perhaps. For Cheever is a noted short-story writer and novelist. He has worked long at perfecting his craft, and he says with pride, "I'm a writer of stories because writing stories is what I do best."

At 64, Cheever, a slender, soft-spoken man, can look back over a long writing career that began with the publication of his first short story at age 17.

"After being expelled from school," Cheever says with a smile and no explanation, "I wrote a story and sold it to the New Republic. That was the first published." But by no means the last. By the time he was in his early 20s, Cheever had published stories in such magazines as the Atlantic and the New Yorker.

"I've published 120 stories in the New Yorker," Cheever says. "But since I'm fairly prolific, at least I think I am, I've got about 220 stories behind me as well as four novels. I had a heart attack about three years ago that knocked me out for a year, and the two years I spent with an infantry line company in World War II didn't give much time for writing, but all in all I think I'm fairly prolific."

Cheever, best known, perhaps, for his National Book Award-winning novel, "The Wapshot Chronicle," and its successor, "The Wapshot Scandal," now has a new novel published, "Falconer."

On the surface, the book tells of the confinement of Ezekiel Farragut in a prison called Falconer for the slaying of his brother. But, like all of Cheever's writing, it deals with wider themes.

"All of my work," he says, "deals with the themes of confinement and what I call blue sky — by that I mean lightness, I mean enjoyment, and the pursuit of it.

"By confinement, I mean the confinements of society — spiritual, emotional, sentimental, physical — every kind of confinement. In 'Falconer,' I chose a prison as a metaphor for confinement because prison is the most universal symbol of confinement and confinement is one of the most universal experiences."

Cheever lives with his wife — "we've been married 40 years almost" — near Ossining, N.Y., in "the neighborhood of Sing Sing Prison but it does not cast a pall over the life of our village and we are not aware of it."

He taught at the prison for two years a few years back but is quick to emphasize that he did not do so to get the material for "Falconer."

"I went to teach writing at the prison because I heard that the 2,000 inmates there had only six teachers," he says forcefully. "It was a good experience, and I did not go there to research for my book. That was not my intent. Also, I want to make very clear that the students I had are not characters in my book."

Cheever also emphasizes that "I have always earned my living by writing, even though it's been very precarious, very touch-and-go all the way through. It was very rough in the early years. But, wait, rough is not quite the word, it was insecure. It still is for that matter. My books sell, but not all that well. But I still very much enjoy writing."

Cheever says he is currently working on "a long story, but I don't know what it is yet. Call it a big piece of fiction. I've no idea when I'm going to finish it or what it's going to be like."

Sister Joan —

flock of about 200 vehicles, mostly donated and therefore in need of repair, at the order's 100 or so institutions in the New York area.

At Brentwood, where the sisters have a nursing home for elderly nuns, Sister Joan discovered an old abandoned stable and converted it into a garage. Here is where she has her inspection station and does major repairs.

"No," she said, answering yet again a question she says she is often asked, "I don't think my vocation is at all unsisterly. What I do is important and serves people, and labor is a prayer."

Does she have, then, any unfilfilled dreams for the life of a nun?

"Yes," she said, grinning, "I dream of someday having an air compressor and good bumper jack and a real lift instead of portable ramps, but no, basically I'm very happy."

Furnishings of Rancho Los Alamitos make the rooms seem still lived in.

Rancho Los Alamitos

One hundred and seventy-one years ago, Juan Jose Nieto, son of a former sergeant in Don Gaspar Portola's expedition of discovery, built a large, rambling adobe on a small hill near the Pacific in what was then New Spain. The property, 156,000 acres, had been awarded to the sergeant by a Spanish land grant in 1784. Nieto built the handsome casa from the clay-like soil on the hill, patting it into bricks and drying them in the sun. The walls of the adobe were four feet thick.

Today the building, restored and enlarged, is the heart of Rancho Los Alamitos (Ranch of the Little Cottonwoods), a historical museum of the City of Long Beach. It is one of the few remaining buildings over which the Spanish, Mexican and American flags have flown.

In the nearly two centuries since Sgt. Manuel Nieto was awarded the land grant, the vast tract has been divided into many ranches, the old adobe deserted for periods of time, then restored and enlarged by the addition of bedrooms, halls, bathrooms, a music room, a library. Rancho Los Alamitos passed through many ownerships over the years, coming at last under the Bixby Home Property Trust whose trustees, in 1968, presented it to the City of Long Beach — the old adobe, various farm buildings and 7½ acres of tree-shaded property. The rancho is administered by the city library and maintained by the parks department.

The adobe and assorted barns, stables and sheds encircle a broad lawn that resembles a park more than a working ranch. Here is a dairy barn labeled "Cow Palace"; stables where one owner, John Bixby, raised stallions; a restored sheepherder's wagon, and a blacksmith shed that is sometimes used to demonstrate to visiting school children the making of tools, brands and horseshoes. Here and there about the green are old hay wagons, a harvester, a log-splitter and a variety of plows.

Because Rancho Los Alamitos is on the site of the ancient Indian village of Pubugna, the city has plans to construct a small replica of the Indian community — a round, thatched hut already stands amid the shrubbery.

The graceful adobe faces a broad lawn on which stand two giant Moreton Bay fig trees, native to Australia, now about 85 years old. The rooms are furnished with turn-of-the-century and contemporary chairs, tables, sofas, bookcases, lamps, curtains and Oriental rugs, so that the adobe seems lived-in today. Much of the furniture has been handed down for generations, and many pieces are valuable antiques. Visitors will see toys, dolls, children's clothes, a pipe collection and a rare collection of glass objects. Some wardrobes have had their wooden doors replaced by glass, to become showplaces for lovely dresses of the gaslight era. There are also many Indian artifacts, including some found at the site of the adobe.

A prominent attraction of Rancho Los Alamitos is the attractive garden — or gardens — that surround it. There is a cactus and succulent garden, a herb garden, a Friendship Garden, a rose garden, a native garden, a geranium walk and an oleander walk. A stream runs through the garden (recycled water) and forms pleasant pools. Near the house stands a large fish pond stocked with Japanese koi (carp) donated by the Japanese Pet Fisheries of Tokyo, some of whose members visited the adobe and were charmed by it.

Rancho Los Alamitos is open from 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. Guided tours are provided by a group of some 50 docents who volunteer their time.

The adobe is reached by the San Gabriel River Freeway (605) south to the San Diego Freeway, west to Palo Verde Avenue, and south to the end of the street, through a guard gate and up Bixby Hill Road to 6400.

ON THE COVER

Standing on a hill overlooking Long Beach, the 171-year-old adobe of Rancho Los Alamitos is now a historical museum. The graceful hacienda and the 7½ acres of surrounding parks and grounds are maintained by the City of Long Beach. The rancho is open to visitors Wednesday through Sunday.

Eighty - five - year - old Moreton Bay fig trees from Australia are sentinels in front of the adobe.

By MIKE SUNDIN
Garey Correspondent

A chapter of the National Honor Society (NHS) has been organized at Garey High School in Pomona. Headed by advisers Ginger Friedman and Norman Poulos, it is one of only four chapters in Southern California.

NHS originated in eastern Los Angeles County and has not been popular throughout Southern California because of the existence of the California Scholastic Federation (CFS), which deals with student academic excellence.

The difference between the two organizations, though, is this. A student desiring membership in NHS not only must have scholarship, but also leadership, character and service qualifications.

Membership in CFS only requires scholarship.

New NHS members at Garey were installed by Councilman Ben Ochoa, school board vice president Fran Livingston, Schools Supt. Charles Carpenter and Douglas MacKenzie, chairman of the district's Mentally Gifted Minors Program.

Refreshments were served by club members. A $50 scholarship was presented to Phillip Lee, this year's NHS president.

Trio from Upland high

Seniors earn scholarships

Three Upland High School seniors have been awarded scholarships.

Dale Hohe, son of Mrs. Nancy Rohe, was awarded a $75 scholarship from the Randleman Memorial Scholarship Fund. He plans to pursue a career in engineering or communications. The Randleman Scholarship is awarded annually to a prospective industrial arts teacher or a prospective architect. This fund was originated in 1969 in memory of Wallace Randleman, former Upland High School industrial arts instructor who was fatally injured in an automobile collision.

Jim Sonner, son of Larry and Teresa Sonner, was awarded the $75 Darms Memorial Scholarship. He plans to attend one of the Claremont Colleges next fall. To qualify for this scholarship, applicants had to meet a minimum grade point average requirement of 3.75 and represent the type of character, academic potential, and distinguished achievement potential in the future that was possessed by the late Leonard Darms, former Upland High School student.

Julie Flamming, elected "girl who contributed most to the class of 1977" at Upland High School, has received a scholarship from Aerojet Electro Systems Co. She is interested in surgical nursing and will continue her studies next year at Azusa Pacific College.

Kathy Gatzke named outstanding student

The Ontario branch of Southwest Savings and Loan Association has presented the 1977 California Savings and Loan League's "Outstanding Student Award" to Kathy S. Gatzke of Montclair High School.

Miss Gatzke, a graduating senior, was honored at an awards luncheon at the Biltmore Bowl in Los Angeles on May 13. A check for $100 and an engraved medallion were presented to her by Jack A. Tweedy, assistant vice president and manager of the Ontario branch. She was recognized at Montclair High School's academic awards assembly.

Miss Gatzke is co-valedictorian of her graduation class, having maintained a perfect 4.0 grade point average the past four years. She has been a member of the California Scholarship Federation for four years and has been in the Girl's Athletic Association, Montclair High School Marching Band and Girl's League.

CSEA scholarships set

Karen Lewis and Cheryl Padilla have been awarded $150 scholarships by Pomona Chapter 14, California School Employes Association (CSEA).

Miss Lewis is a student at Pomona High School. She plans to attend Mt. San Antonio College and major in theater arts. She is the daughter of Richard E. Lewis of Wrightwood and Mrs. Dorothy Lewis of Pomona, an executive secretary in the Pomona school district.

Miss Padilla, a student at Garey High School, also plans to attend Mt. San Antonio College. She will major in business. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Padilla. Her mother, Billie, is an instructional aide in the reading lab at Simons Junior High School.

Students earn MECHA awards

Ten Pomona High School seniors have been selected to receive $100 MECHA scholarsips to assist them as they enter four-year and private colleges for 1977-78.

The scholarships are to be used to purchase books and supplies.

The recipients are Patty Alvarez, who plans to attend Mt. San Antonio College; Cynthia Chavez, Pomona College; Olga Davila, Cal Poly Pomona; Raul Garcia, Mt. San Antonio College; Helen Hernandez, La Verne College; Connie Lopez, Cal Poly Pomona; Richard Nila, Mt. San Antonio College; Domingo Rodriguez, U.C. San Diego; Susan Salazar, Cal Poly Pomona; and Richard Vega, Whittier College.

Each recipient has been active several years in MECHA. Each has participated in community cultural fiestas in Pomona and Ontario. The MECHA float won second place in the Cinco de Mayo parade in Ontario.

Faculty adviser Mike Arredondo said these 10 students have made the MECHA Club at Pomona High School the most active the school has had for several years.

MECHA's objectives are to involve students in school activities and promote cultural exchange. MECHA sponsored a campus Chicano Culture Week during which members related contributions Mexicans have made to our society.

This was the club's main fund-raising event and helped the club raise money for the scholarships.

All X rays called 'health hazard'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A statistical expert for a leading cancer institute told a Senate committee Friday that even low dosages of X rays are a health hazard.

Irwin D. J. Bross, director of biostatistics at the Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, N.Y., said new findings done by his team and others indicate that dangers of low level radiation are "far worse" than anyone expected.

He said the small dosages, as well as larger amounts of X rays can result in possible cancers or birth defects.

"Millions of Americans have been exposed to diagnostic X ray which have sometimes done serious harm, but we cannot do much about this now except to wait a few years and hope to catch the leukemia or cancer early," said Bross.

Bross estimated that of the 15 million Americans who get X-rayed each year, about 10 million get an unnecessary exposure.

He figured that only about half a million — or only one patient in 30 — get X rays for very serious conditions where, for instance, the exposure might save their lives.

Bross, testifying at the Senate Commerce Committee's hearings on radiation and health, said too many physicians practice "defensive medicine" and order unnecessary laboratory tests or X rays in case of a malpractice suit.

Additionally, he said, X rays are given out of sheer habit as well as the "persistence of antiquated motions about annual examinations for tuberculosis and other diseases." In many other cases, said Bross, patients are unable to get possession of their own X rays when they change doctors, and therefore get a new set.

But, basically the root of the problem is money, Bross told the committee.

"These X rays are ordered routinely because they will be paid for by third-party insurers just as routinely. If they weren't paid for," he said, "they would not be given."

Bross recommended that a certificate of necessity signed by two physicians should be required before there can be any third party payment for X ray.

Mitchell, Haldeman final appeal issued

WASHINGTON (AP) — A purported "news leak" over closed Supreme Court deliberations requires that the court review the appeals of Watergate cover-up defendants John Mitchell and H.R. Haldeman, attorneys for the two men said Friday.

In their last effort to save Mitchell and Haldeman from long prison stays set to begin next week, their attorneys were to ask the Supreme Court to reconsider its May 23 decision not to hear the cover-up appeals, according to a text of the appeal obtained by The Associated Press.

Mitchell and Haldeman are to report to federal prisons next Wednesday.

"Petitioners assert that such a breach of this court's secrecy has deprived them of due process and equal protection ...." the petition for a rehearing said.

CHICAGO (AP) — Claiming a major victory for their cause, delegates to the National Right to Life Committee convention broke into wild cheers Friday after the U.S. House of Representatives voted to cut off federal money to pay for abortions.

Dr. Carolyn Gerster, who interrupted a morning session to announce the news from Washington, said the reaction was "relief, exuberance and unbridled joy. I've never seen such joy."

Pro-life advocates are "very, very hopeful the Senate will approve the same passage," she said. "We knew that groups like Zero Population Growth and Planned Parenthood were calling out all their forces to get rid of the abortion-prohibitive language in the bill."

The 201-155 vote favoring the abortion restrictions is "regarded as a major turning point because it was a test between the two forces," said Dr. Gerster, re-elected Thursday as chairman of the board.

The Scottsdale, Ariz. internist described the movement as "a sleeping giant. We simply have not realized our own strength."

Earlier, the group's president described the vote as an example of the growing political effectiveness of Right to Life organizations.

A major theme of the three-day convention, attended by about 3,000 delegates, is a call to political action, Dr. Mildred F. Jefferson said. "We have reached the crisis point, where either we gain political effectiveness ... or we break up, as other movements have done," she said in an interview.

Estimating that as many as 11 million Americans support the pro-life cause, she said the group's No. 1 priority is to "coalesce and channel the direction of the movement to bring about ratification of the 'Human Life Amendment.'"

The proposed constitutional amendment would outlaw abortions except those required to save the life of the mother.

To achieve that goal, she said, "we must become fund raisers and precinct captains, work in political campaigns, get into the party structure and influence national platforms."

Pointing out that it has been four years since the U.S. Supreme Court ruling that allows abortions, she noted that "we've wasted too much time already."

"All the Supreme Court did was to draw a curtain around the first 12 weeks of pregnancy," she said. "This has resulted in millions of atrocities, the killing of unborn babies."

She claimed the pro-life movement gains strength "with every adverse legal decision that strikes down the right for life, which is the most basic human right of all. They (abortion rights' advocates) do not have the numbers we do. Their gains have been achieved with behind-the-scenes maneuvering."

Dr. Jefferson, a Boston surgeon, was re-elected by acclamation at the convention's opening session Thursday.

Seminars at the fifth annual gathering have spanned a broad range of issues, including such topics as euthanasia and the enactment of so-called "living will" bills in more than half the states. Still, the anti-abortion theme has dominated most discussions.

Energy tax cut in half, then passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest energy-saving tax in President Carter's program was sliced in half and then approved Friday by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Committee technicians contended that despite the cutback in the tax on the industrial use of oil and natural gas, the panel's plan would save almost as much energy as the President's version.

The committee approved the tax on a 19-1 vote but delayed until next week a decision on how to get most of the money back to industries and utilities to help them pay for converting their oil-and gas-burning facilities to coal power.

The Carter administration estimates the President's version of the tax and rebate would save the equivalent of 3.3 million barrels of oil daily by 1985. The entire energy program outlined by Carter in April would save an estimated 4.5 million barrels. Current U.S. usage is 17.4 million barrels per day.

The tax imposed in the committee bill would be essentially the same as under Carter's program, especially when fully effective in 1985. But the key difference is that the committee's tax would apply to considerably fewer industries and utilities than would the President's.

For Florida killer

Supreme Court lets death penalty stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court left undisturbed Friday the death sentence given a Florida man convicted of torturing and slaying two of his children even though Florida did not have a valid capital punishment law when he committed the crimes.

The court said Florida may send Ernest John Dobbert of Jacksonville to the electric chair.

In a 6-3 vote, the justices rejected Dobbert's claims that his sentence represented an "ex post facto" application of a constitutionally valid death penalty law the Florida Legislature passed Dec. 8, 1972.

In the Florida case, the court's majority ruled that Dobbert knew when he committed the murders that he could face execution.

Dobbert, now a Florida death row inmate, was convicted of killing his 9-year-old daughter Kelly Ann in late 1971 or early 1972 and his son Ryder Scott in early 1972.

At that time, Florida had a death penalty law on its books but it was struck down when the Supreme Court ruled on June 22, 1972 that all states' death penalty laws as then applied were unconstitutional.

Florida moved swiftly to draft a new death penalty law, and did so later that year. The Supreme Court last July upheld the law as constitutional.

Dobbert, who stood trial in 1974, was tried and sentenced under the new law. His trial jury voted 10 to 2 to give Dobbert life in prison but the trial judge, enpowered under the Florida law to disregard the jury's recommendation, imposed the death sentence. The state Supreme Court upheld the judge's action.

Outspoken general 'rebuked'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army officials rebuked a three-star general Friday night for his unauthorized warning that the United States might wind up in the middle of a Soviet-Chinese war, but took no action to block his pending promotion or scheduled new assignment.

Lt. Gen. Donn A. Starry, who arrived from Germany earlier in the day, spent 30 minutes on the carpet before Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Army Chief of Staff Bernard W. Rogers at the Pentagon.

After the meeting, Alexander and Rogers issued a statement saying they had reminded Starry of the need to clear speeches before delivery, and "we expressed our mutual concern that he had failed to do so."

Starry, 52, the second general to get into hot water within a month for speaking out of line, was not observed by reporters going in or going out of the building.

Arriving at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York earlier Friday, Starry told reporters only:

"I have just arrived in the United States en route to my new assignment. I have been ordered to Washington to discuss my speech with the secretary of the Army and the Army chief of staff. Thank you very much."

The general's nomination for a fourth star has been blocked on Capital Hill at the request of Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., until members of the Senate Armed Services Committee have a chance to read the controversial speech the general made.

Expo 81 multi-million dollar funding plan may be unveiled

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Expo 81 representatives may unveil the details of a multi-million dollar revenue bond Tuesday night that would take care of all funding requirements for the proposed international exposition at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Jerry Clemans, public relations director for Expo 81 Corp., reported Friday that exposition representatives will attend the Ontario City Council meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. The discussion is set near the end of a nine-page agenda.

Clemans stated was a special meeting held last Monday to brief representatives of all parties concerned with the financing arrangements for Expo 81 on the details of the bond issue. Among those attending were representatives of the Bank of America which serves as trustee for the present OMS bondholders; the U.S. Department of Commerce; the City of Ontario and Ontario Motor Speedway; and Expo 81 legal counsel.

Clemans explained that about three weeks ago, Expo 81 Corp. hired the firm of Bear, Stearns and Co. of New York City as the investment banking organization for Expo 81 and the international firm of Touche Ross and Co. as financial management and accounting team.

These firms were "hired in order to structure a multi-million dollar municipal type bond issue," Clemans said. "We agreed that the master or umbrella financing would be best handled by this. It is a revenue tax exempt bond issue with no underwriting or guarantee required by any governmental agency.

"In other words, no tax dollars are committed or required to guarantee this, as opposed to a general obligation type bond.

"This will be paid only through revenue from the fair. No taxpayers' dollars are involved," Clemans asserted.

The Expo 81 Corp. board of directors, in a special meeting Thursday night, approved the particulars of the financing plan; but Clemans said no exact dollar figures on the size of the bond have been determined as yet.

Representatives of the Commerce Department and Bank of America have indicated favorable opinions on the bond, he added. The Commerce

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police shot six blacks dead and arrested 278 Friday in two segregated black townships 500 miles southwest of Johannesburg. The death toll climbed to nine from two days of arson, looting and rock throwing, authorities said.

Thirty-three persons were wounded in confrontations with police and an estimated $1.5 million damage was done to government buildings, schools and other property in Kwanobuhle and Kabah, black townships outside the white city of Uitenhage in the southern Cape area.

Twenty-nine blacks were reported injured, most from gunshots, throughout South Africa as a result of confrontations with police Thursday and Friday. No nationwide figures were available on arrests. Most the black townships were reported quiet Friday.

Police used tear gas to quell rock throwing youths in Soweto, the country's largest black township 10 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

The violence coincided with the first anniversary of the bloody Soweto riots, which began June 16 and resulted in months of racial upheaval that claimed 600 lives.

The violence in the southern townships began with rockthrowing in Kabah on Thursday. Late-night looting and arson followed and spread to nearby Kwanobuhle. Initial targets were government buildings and other symbols of authority, but it was not known what triggered the rioting.

Police Brig. P.J. Hugo said officers shot and killed five rioters who had repeatedly tried to loot a liquor store in Kwanobuhle. One rioter was fatally wounded in Kabah early Friday and two alleged looters were found burned to death in a gutted store after a fire Thursday night.

Police said a ninth rioter died under unknown circumstances.

A total of 40,000 blacks live in the two townships and many work in the auto centers of Uitenhage and Port Elizabeth.

Police said rioters set fire to Kabah township's six schools, two liquor stores, a beer hall, workshop, funeral parlor, community center, several stores and cars.

Hugo said the arrests came Friday afternoon during a massive police swoop to quell the violence in Kwanobuhle. Hugo is division police commander in Port Elizabeth, where extensive rioting occurred last year, and was placed in charge of riot control in the townships about 20 miles inland.

Raps manufacturers for slow safety measures

Auto workers finally back air bags

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union ended a long silence on air bags Friday by announcing its support of the safety devices and goading automakers for foot-dragging on safety matters.

UAW President Douglas A. Fraser said he has urged Transportation Secretary Brock Adams to require that new cars be equipped with a passive restraint system — either air bags or safety belts that automatically buckle around an occupant.

Adams has promised to decide by July 1 whether to require air bags, as the insurance industry wants, or keep current belt systems and enact a mandatory belt use law, as the auto industry is seeking.

"I think the evidence is simply overwhelming that a passive restraint system would save thousands of lives," said Fraser, noting one government study which concluded air bags could save 9,000 lives a year.

"... This matter has been under study for 10 years now and I think it's about time to come to a decision," he said.

"Time after time, the auto industry has dragged its feet on safety issues until forced to act by the government and the American people," added Fraser, who succeeded Leonard Woodcock as president of the union just one month ago.

The UAW's stance directly opposes that of the auto industry.

Recently, the union and industry have agreed on several major policy issues. Both lobbied for delays in implementing tougher auto pollution standards and against key elements of President Carter's energy plan — including the tax on gas-guzzling cars, rebates on fuel efficient models and standby gasoline tax increase.

Detroit has argued that air bags are not as effective as shoulder-lap belts and are substantially more expensive.

But air bag advocates say studies show less than a quarter of the driving public bothers to buckle seat belts.

Automakers say air bags could add up to $300 to the price of a new car. But government studies indicate the price could be less than $100, and consumer advocate Ralph Nader has said they could be mass-produced for as little as $50 apiece.

Air bags are "passive" restraint systems because the occupant does not have to do anything, such as buckling up, to be protected.

A Chrysler Corp. executive said Friday he was "amazed the UAW is promoting use of a second-best system for saving lives."

Chrysler Vice President Sidney Terry noted a government study showing that present belt systems are 50 per cent more effective in preventing serious injury than air bags.

"If everybody used safety belts in all cars now, 19,000 lives would be saved each year, several times more than air bags would ever save," said Terry.

Toth arrives in London

LONDON (AP) — Los Angeles Times correspondent Robert C. Toth arrived Friday night from Moscow after prolonged interrogation by Soviet secret police about articles he had written and his contacts with Soviet dissidents.

Toth, appearing tired after more than 12 hours of questioning over the past several days, told airport reporters he thought the motive behind his grilling was that "they wanted to scare a lot of correspondents and dissidents."

Toth, 48, was questioned several times in Moscow's Lefortovo prison. He said: "I am sure if the White House and State Department hadn't come out as strongly as they did, I'd still be in the pokey."

Asked if he had been physically mistreated during his sessions in the prison, Toth said he had not. He added, "Psychologically it was very wearing to know that you had to go back day after day, session after session."

Toth said he thought the questioning of him was particularly aimed at Anatoly Shcharansky, a Jewish activist and a prominent dissident who is being held and apparently will be charged with treason.

Toth knew Shcharansky well.

"By their (the Soviets') definition treason is almost anything that makes anyone think less of the Soviet Union," Toth said. "If you say they have dirty streets it could be considered damaging to the state and therefore treasonable."

Asked if at any time he feared he might be imprisoned, Toth said, "I thought there was a significant chance that I would be locked up, but I did not think it was a probability."

The correspondent, who served about three years in Moscow, was accompanied by his wife, Paula, and their children John, 7; Jennifer, 9, and Jessica, 13.

Asked how it felt to be out of the Soviet Union, Toth said, "Fine" and added with a smile, "My eldest daughter said, 'You can't believe it — they have clean toilets here.'"

Toth had been on the point of leaving the Soviet Union anyway, at the end of his assignment, but earlier this week was told by authorities he would have to remain until they had finished their investigations of him. Later they said he was free to leave as scheduled.

The Toths plan to stay in London until Sunday, when they will fly to Los Angeles.

Six accused of soliciting

Six women arrested early Friday at an Ontario truck stop were accused of prostitution

Police said the suspects were arrested individually after undercover officers posing as truck drivers were solicited.

Booked at the sheriff's jail in Ontario were Rosemary Irene Burrows, 26, Riverside; Debra Ann Sanders, 28, San Bernardino; Julie Slosky, 18, Hollywood; Betty Hale, 21, Riverside; Judy Dawsey, 25, Riverside; and Donna Thompson, 19, San Bernardino.

Bail was set at $500 for each suspect. All said they were unemployed. The truck stop is located on Milliken Avenue.

Department's acceptance of the plan is contingent upon meeting all deadlines set by the federal government for completion of other plans for the fair. If those deadlines are not met, Clemans stated, "Ontario and Los Angeles will not have a world exposition. This is, in other words, the final proposition.

"Expo 81 doesn't have time, because of the government deadline, to delay any further. We must reach agreement along these lines or there will not be an exposition. There isn't time left to continue the debate."

This revenue bond plan does not replace any of the existing financial programs, Clemans observed; for example, the $30 to $60 million in construction financing from International Planners and Developers, a consortium of construction companies.

The bond, he said, would "provide us with the master or umbrella financing which will absorb or retire these other interim plans."

The public relations director also reported that there has been a change in the means of acquiring the speedway site. Rather than purchasing the existing speedway bonds "we propose to lease the site for the period between now and 1982 and pay the existing bondholders a substantial sum of money for the lease," Clemans said.

Pointing out that OMS is now in default some $30 million, Clemans said that if the Bank of America forecloses on the site, "everybody to a large extent would lose something. The city would lose its $7 million reversionary rights and the speedway bonds would be valueless except what can be auctioned off.

"The lease would give everybody a substantial sum of money," he said, "and at the end of the fair the bondholders would have received all the money from rent and still have an existing lien on the track plus improvements."

The revenue bond issue would require approval of the state Legislature, not citizens. Clemans said it hasn't been decided who will introduce the issue into the state Legislature.

"There's a lot of guessing going on. And it's just guessing, nothing else. A decision will be reached within the next two weeks," Clemans said.

"The timing of the introduction of this is not necessarily a key factor. Whether it's introduced now or after the legislature is convened in August doesn't make much difference as long as it's in the hopper," he said.

Sam Crowe, attorney for the City of Ontario and the OMS board, will meet with both the City Council and speedway board Monday in legal session to discuss the legalities and language of the revenue bond and its effects upon the city

Humberto Ernest Cordero, 26, was shot one time in the back and had more than 100 shotgun pellets removed from his buttocks and lower back. He was admitted to San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Deputies said Martinez and Cordero, who was being employed by Martinez, became involved in a dispute on Club House Drive in Cucamonga at about 4:30 a.m.

They said Martinez was reportedly upset over personal problems and shot Cordero after the argument.

Upland board okays pay hike for administrators

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Despite strong objections from two board members, the Upland school board has voted to grant 6.5 per cent salary increases to 16 district administrators.

The raises were approved on a 3-2 vote with trustees Dina Ross Hunter and Robert Ellis opposing them. Barry Brandt, William Rugg and Dale Anderson voted in favor of the increases.

Mrs. Hunter, in a public statement following a closed executive session at which the raises were discussed, said, "Increases of this kind are not fiscally acceptable. Considering income levels in the community, administrative salaries are more than adequate.

"Across-the-board percentage increases distort the salary range. It is a misnomer that all employes should receive the same percentage increase."

Supt. George Renworth said the increases were for central office administrators (except himself) and district principals. He noted the salaries for the administrators range from $28,492 to $33,266.

"The argument among board members was over what kind of raises these people should get," he said. "When you start discussing salaries in the $30,000 bracket, it gets pretty emotional."

Board members also approved, on the same 3-2 vote, adjustments to salaries plus a 6.4 per cent cost-of-living boost for 11 confidential and classified employes. Seven are confidential (secretarial) workers and four are classified "directors" of maintenance, food services, transportation and accounting.

Total cost to the district for all the raises is $54,000, noted Renworth.

In other business, trustees approved an $8,873,940 tentative budget for 1977-78 that is $900,000 higher than last year's figure.

Renworth declined to estimate the tax rate, but indicated it may drop "a few cents." He said assessed valuation figures are not in yet, so it is hard to present an accurate tax rate.

'Thank you' comes from helicopter

The Pomona Police Department Thursday issued a public thank you from its helicopter for assistance in the search for a missing youngster.

From about 2:30 to 6:30 p.m., the department's helicopter circled over the northeastern part of the city announcing the description of a missing 6-year-old boy.

During the several hours, police officers asked residents of the area to call the department with any information.

At dusk, the helicopter again circled the area.

This time the message was "Thank you for your cooperation. We have located the youngster. Thank you."

U.S. fight against cancer paying off

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's fight against cancer is paying dividends in the form of fewer deaths, more effective drugs, and less expensive and more reliable tests for the disease, the acting director of the National Cancer Institute says.

Dr. Guy R. Newell told a House subcommittee on Thursday that cancer deaths are decreasing among members of every age group under 35.

He said the country's efforts against the disease in the past five years have also meant development of new classes of anti-cancer drugs and less hazardous cigarettes.

"It will be a long, hard pull. If I'm going to get into the action, I've got to get into it now. Most Republicans agree, since I'm totally unknown."

Sumrall, associate professor of communications and director of debate at Chaffey College, Alta Loma, said in seeking the nomination he had something he really wants to do.

Political arena

The REPUBLICAN CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF LOS ANGELES COUNTY voted overwhelmingly this week to commend singer Anita Bryant and her "Save Our Children" Committee for "upholding moral standards in Dade County, Florida."

Committee chairman Bill Orozco strongly supported the move saying, "We feel the vote in Florida was a victory for normal people all across America. The Republican Party has consistently argued against allowing homosexuals to flaunt their abberation in public."

The Dade County Democrat Central Committee voted to support the homosexual position, Orozco said. Commenting on this, he added, "Whether moral disintegration surfaces in Miami, Fla., or Hollywood, Calif., it is the duty of public entities to stand up and be counted.

"In Los Angeles County, the Republican Party has taken a clear stand in favor of the family unit and a decent, moral society.

Sumrall is president of the Community Service Club in Etiwanda. He wants to see people accomplish more on their own instead of relying on government for cradle-to-grave security.

"Congress must stop deficit spending," he said. "My Democratic opponent voted to increase the national debt to $86 million.

"Regulatory agencies must be cut back. Congress, in the past 15 years, has added 200 new agencies, bureaus and commissions which are staffed, supplied and supported by the taxpayer.

"Instead, it has stifled it by make-work programs and government controls."

Claremont can't lease park to Y

By GEORGE MACLAREN
PB Staff Writer

Claremont City Attorney William Bergman has ruled that under "case and constitutional law of the state" the city could not legally lease Cahuilla Park land to the Claremont YMCA.

In a memo received and filed by the City Council this week, Bergman stated that in his opinion a working agreement within the parameters acceptable to the YMCA cannot be obtained unless an election is held and the portion of the park sought by the Y is abandoned by the city.

Bergman said the law requires that public parks be open to the public and that includes buildings in the parks.

He said that a city's lease of a clubhouse adjacent to bowling greens to a bowling club is proper, provided that club membership is open to all the public.

Bergman cited a case of a nursery school using a county park building for storage of equipment, and said the court ruled the general public was excluded from the use of the park because the school had exclusive use of the building and its facilities, and therefore was not a proper use of the park.

Bergman cited a section of the government code which permits a city to sell off a portion of a park after public hearings and after an affirmative vote of the citizenry.

Gyle Tague, chairman of the Claremont YMCA, said he had not yet received a copy of Bergman's opinion, but that it had been the Y's original intent to explore all possibilities.

"But in exploring more and more the Cahuilla Park possibility, the matter became more complicated," Tague said.

"It is obvious," he continued, "that it would be more complicated than we have time to work on such a matter. The Y needs some autonomy. We are looking at two other sites, one on Base Line Road, the other on Foothill Boulevard."

Tague said that the Y has been operating in Claremont 10 years, and that it has reached the point that in order to grow it needs a full-service facility.

Tague said such a facility includes a gymnasium, a swimming pool, handball courts and lockers and shower rooms.

Tague commended the City Council for looking at the possibilities, but said that the legalities seem to dictate what is possible.

The Y at present is operating its program out of an office at the Old Baldy Council Boy Scout building on San Jose Avenue in Claremont.

Trustee against rehiring Jones

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Ontario-Montclair school trustee Kathleen Brugger stunned her fellow board members Thursday night by suggesting that Supt. Jack Jones' contract not be renewed.

The board later renewed Jones' contract for another four years after a 40-minute closed personnel session.

Mrs. Brugger never publicly explained why she made a motion that, in effect, would have terminated Jones had she received support from other board members.

Trustee Sam DiGiovanni, who moved to renew Jones' contract following the hastily-called personnel session, said Mrs. Brugger only had a "minor question" about the contract. "It was only a misunderstanding of the contract."

He asked Mrs. Brugger if that was true, and she answered affirmatively. But she did not explain what the "minor question" or "miscalculation" was.

DiGiovanni maintained there was "no big mystery" over the contract issue but admitted he was stunned when Mrs. Brugger made her earlier suggestion.

Board members were considering renewing contracts for Jones, Deputy Supt. George Duerr and two assistant superintendents. Mrs. Brugger asked that Jones' contract be acted upon separately.

Then, just after the other administrators' contracts were renewed, Mrs. Brugger moved "not to approve the superintendent's contract."

Jones immediately said, "This is news to me."

DiGiovanni echoed Jones' feelings and called for a closed personnel session. "We should not discuss any employe in open session," he noted, explaining that under the law boards are permitted to discuss it behind closed doors.

Jones asked to join the board at the session, but they decided to discuss the issue without him.

"I'd like to know what motivated that suggestion," Jones told a reporter while the board was out of the room. "It came as a complete surprise to me."

Jones has been the district superintendent for four years. Mrs. Brugger was elected to her post in March.

Father's Day phone calls expected up

An improving economy may result in Dad being called more often this Father's Day than in previous years, said Jack M. King, public affairs administrator for General Telephone Co.

King said all long-distance calling patterns are up this year, due in part to an upswing in the national economy. And if the trend holds true, the telephone company expects a 15 per cent increase in calls on Father's Day over the volume recorded last year.

Although the final figures are not yet in, General Telephone estimates that calling on Mother's Day was up a similar percentage over last year.

"Even though Dad's calls may increase in number this year, he still plays second fiddle to Mom on her day," King noted. "Traditionally the company's call volumes are up over a normal Sunday by about 75 per cent on Mother's Day, while the increase for Dad averages only around 40 per cent.

Normally General Telephone has 500 long distance operators scheduled throughout the company for Sunday duty. "That number was doubled on Mother's Day," King said. "Although not that many are needed on Father's Day, we will be adding operators to the work force in each of our 20 long-distance offices on Father's Day.

"It's still a good idea to call Dad early — maybe even on Saturday (today) — to avoid the potential busy circuits on Father's Day. Direct dialing is the least expensive way to call," King advised, "with the lowest rates in effect from 11 p.m. on Friday and continuing through the weekend until 5 p.m. on Sunday."

Youth summer jobs offered

Job sites will be in Pomona, La Verne, San Dimas, Walnut and Diamond Bar.

Playing dead

Land developers will have to pay for parks

San Bernardino County supervisors will require land developers who build in Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda to donate land or pay fees for development of parks.

This supports County Service Area No. 50, which provides park and recreation facilities for residents in the three communities. The group is developer of a plan which calls for five acres of parks for every 1,000 residents.

Supervisors last February adopted an ordinance that allows for collection of fees or land from developers when they build in unincorporated areas. But application of the ordinance, however, requires the supervisors and a special district to approve the measure.

The three communities will be the first in the county area to use this type of park financing.

Since the park fees will eventually be passed on to the homeowners, the average buyer will pay $296 for parks when he purchases his home, said officials.

Other park development costs will come from such sources as property taxes, state and federal grants, and possibly bond issues.

Recital scheduled

Violinist Daniel Strang will present a recital at Hillcrest Homes, La Verne, at 7 p.m. today. He will be accompanied by pianist Carol Hendrixson. The public is invited.

The program will include a Dvorak dance arranged by Fritz Kreisler and "Liebesfreud" by Kreisler.

Strang is a graduate of the Indiana University School of Music.

Musical outreach program to debut

A new form of outreach will debut June 25 at Calvary Baptist Church Ontario.

"Man Against Himself" is the title of the open-air concert to be put on by the evangelical group, "Today, Eternity And Man" or TEAM

With music, the group weaves the story of man and his dissatisfaction with life, beginning with common emotions, and leading to Christ. Rock masterpieces from Stevie Wonder, Al Stewart, Moody Blues, Chicago, Aerosmith, John Lennon, Doobie Brothers, Temptations, Rolling Stones and the rock opera "Superstar" will be featured.

The group, consisting of a four-piece brass section, four-piece rythm section, three-girl chorus and two male leads, will be playing outside of Calvary at 730 N. Mountain Ave., at 7 p.m. Admission is free, however, there will be an offering.

"This is not Christian music" admits Pastor Art Waeterling, "But the theme concludes with Jesus as the way of life."

Musical adventure in a magical land

The "Rapture Repertory Group" will be at the Christian Chapel of Walnut Valley Sunday at 6 p.m. to present the musical adaptation of "The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe."

The story involves four children and their adventures in a magical land of Narnia, where it is always winter but never Christmas. While in Narnia, the children become involved in the struggle between the White Witch, representing the powers of darkness, and Aslan, the lion, representing Christ.

At the climax of the struggle, Aslan lays down his life as a ransom for the life of one of the children whose deeds as a traitor bring him under condemnation unto death. Aslan, in his resurrection, demonstrates the final victory of the risen Saviour over the powers of darkness.

As ye rip so shall ye sew

On the fourth Tuesday of each month from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., 13 members of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the First Christian Church of Pomona meet in room 24 at the church to mend.

They distribute torn shirts, underwear, jeans, pajamas and linens from a giant cardboard box and get busy, two at sewing machines and the remainder with needle in hand.

They're mending clothes and linens for the youngsters who live at LeRoy Boys' Home in La Verne. Staff members gather the ripped articles and deliver them to the church for the "mending aunties" to fix.

"We started repairing clothes for LeRoys when it first opened back in 1946," said Eva Haworth, president of the "mending aunties" since 1971.

"None of the original aunties are with us now. They used to go up to the home to do the mending. Pretty soon they needed larger quarters, so we arranged to use the church classroom."

Mrs. Haworth, Pomona, said the group was dubbed the "mending aunties" because all staff members at LeRoys are called "aunt" and "uncle" by the boys.

"They felt that because we were helping, too, we should be called aunts. We do all their mending," said Mrs. Haworth.

She keeps a record.

"Sometimes we mend 100 articles in one session. We average more than 1,000 pieces a year. We do everything but socks. They take too long," she explained.

The "mending aunties" refuse to use iron-on patches to repair torn jeans. Instead, they have boxes of various patch material which they cut and meticulously sew into place. If the knees in a pair of jeans are too bad, they just cut the pant legs off and convert the jeans into a pair of shorts.

Lotta Collins, known as the "jacket lady" because she specializes in repairing torn jackets, lives in Pomona and sometimes takes the jackets home if she can't finish them during a Tuesday session.

Mrs. Haworth, who helped her husband operate a sewing machine store in El Monte for years, learned to mend during the depression. "We had lots of it, too," she recalled.

She has four children, 13 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

NABBED AT SECOND

Chicago Cubs' Bill Buckner dives into second base head first trying to stretch a single into a double in seventh inning, but is called out by umpire Ed Sudol as Bill Russell applies the tag. Chicago rallied for four runs in ninth to best L.A., 7-3.

Rudi has four hits

Angels win in 10 innings

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Joe Rudi cracked his fourth hit, a two-out double in the 10th inning, and scored the winning run on a single by Dave Chalk as the California Angels defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 7-5 in a rain-delayed game Friday night.

Rudi doubled to the left-field corner off Bill Castro, 7-4, then broke a 5-5 tie by barely beating Von Joshua's throw to the plate on Chalk's single to center. Bobby Bonds delivered Chalk with his third double and fourth hit of the night.

The start of the contest was delayed one hour and 38 minutes by rain.

The Brewers scored twice in the eighth to tie the score at 55. Ken McMullen singled and Steve Brye doubled before pinch-hitter Von Joshua followed with a two-run double.

The Angels took a 5-3 lead in the top of the eighth on a two out, two-run single by Mario Guerrero.

The Brewers took a 2-0 firstinning lead on an error by Angels second baseman Jerry Remy and two-out singles by Sal Bando, Cecil Cooper and McMullen.

The Angels tied it in the second on doubles by Bonds and Guerrero and a pair of infield outs.

The Brewers took a 3-2 lead with a fifth inning run on an RBI single by Cecil Cooper before the Angels tied it at 3-3 an inning later on singles by Orlando Ramirez, Rudi, and Bando.

Rudi got the first hit of the game, a bloop single that fell in front of Jim Wohlford in a slippery left field with two out in the Angels' first. Tony Solaita then flied deep to Steve Brye in center, retiring the side.

The two unearned runs scored by the Brewers in their half brought to 17 the number of runs that Remy's last six errors have cost the Angels. Remy bobbled Yount's hopper leading off the inning.

Remy left the game an inning later. The Angels said he had pulled a rib cage muscle running out a grounder in the first. Ramirez replaced him.

The Brewers wasted leadoff singles by Don Money and Sixto Lezcano in the third as the next two hitters were routine outs to the outfield and Ron Jackson made a fine play to retire McMullen on a slow hopper.

ASU reaches W.S. finale

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Darrell Jackson limited Southern Illinois to three hits Friday night and Brandt Humphry knocked in three runs as top-rated Arizona State avenged its only College World Series defeat with a 10-0 thumping of the Salukis.

The victory sends Arizona State, 56-12, into tonight's championship game against South Carolina, 43-11-1. South Carolina received a bye into the finals.

In the first four innings, Arizona State pounded out 13 hits and built a 7-0 lead against Dewey Robinson, who had topped the Sun Devils 3-2 in a second-round game.

Humphry collected four hits including a two-run homer in the fifth and a triple, and designated hitter Jamie Allen knocked in two runs as did All-America second baseman Bob Horner.

Arizona State's 19 hits fell three short of the one-game series record. The Sun Devils had at least one hit in every inning and collected four each in the third and fourth.

Jackson, a loser to Southern Illinois earlier, struck out four and allowed only one runner as far as third base.

Steve Michael added a solo home run for Arizona State and was one of three Sun Devils with three hits.

Crum interested in UCLA job

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Denny Crum, coach of the University of Louisville basketball team, said Friday he would consider an offer to become head coach at UCLA, but that he has not been contacted by anyone from UCLA.

Crum, once an assistant under former UCLA Coach Johnny Wooden, has been a target of speculation since Gene Bartow said earlier this week he was resigning to start a basketball program at the University of Alabama-Birmingham.

"I have not been approached by anybody," Crum said. "Sure I'd consider it. You'd have to talk to them, wouldn't you? If the circumstances were right, I wouldn't object to going back to California."

Crum, a native of San Francisco, played at Pierce Junior College and at UCLA under Wooden. Since joining Louisville in 1971, he has led the Cardinals to three NCAA playoffs. Ironically, each time Louisville has been knocked out by UCLA.

Dave Hart, Louisville's athletic director, said Friday that no one from UCLA had asked him for permission to negotiate with Crum.

Dodgers falter

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — Bill Buckner returned to Dodger Stadium Friday night and gave a little needle to Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda.

"We don't have a lot of speed or power but we have good pitching and defense the Big Cub in the Sky is looking over us," Buckner said after the Cubs won the opening game of the weekend series between the National League division leaders.

The Cubs extended their lead in the National League East to six games over the St. Louis Cardinals while the Dodgers' lead over Cincinnati in the West was reduced to 6½ thanks to Chicago's 7-3 victory.

Friday's decision came down to a battle of relief pitchers as Chicago's amazing Bruce Sutter picked up his third victory to go with 17 saves as his teammates battered Dodger relief ace Charlie Hough for four runs in top of the ninth inning.

Sutter, who lowered his incredible earned run average to 0.75 in 2 1/3 innings, actually gave up the game-tying hit to pinch-hitter Reggie Smith in the bottom of the seventh but the forkball artist struck out five Dodgers including the side in the bottom of the ninth.

In 59 2/3 innings on the mound this season, Sutter has allowed only five earned runs, 32 hits, seven walks and has struck out 72 batters.

"I call my out pitch a split finger fastball," Sutter said, "because I throw it faster than a forkball. It comes in like a fastball and then all of a sudden it breaks. I learned it from Fred Martin, our roving pitching instructor."

Asked about his amazing walk-strikeout ratio, Sutter added, "I've had good control in the past but nothing like this. I'm getting the first pitch over pretty regularly."

Hough came in but he obviously didn't have it this time. Jerry Morales singled to left to send Murcer to third. Manny Trillo, the National League's top batter at .382, followed with a triple to center when Rick Monday couldn't make a shoestring catch to make it 5-3.

Murcer ripped a two-run homer in the first inning and he started the Cubs in the fourth by beating out an infield single, scoring on Trillo's sacrifice fly.

The Dodgers knocked rookie Mike Krukow of San Gabriel out in the sixth inning when Lee Lacy singled and Steve Garvey connected on his 14th homer - fifth in six games to make it 3-2.

An error by third baseman Steve Ontiveros led to the Dodger run in the seventh. After Johnny Oates sacrificed Glenn Burke to second, Smith singled to right off of Sutter to tie the score to thrill the 52,487 Dodger Stadium fans on Cap Night.

"I though we would be OK," Buckner said about the Cubs. "But I would be a fool to say we would be in first place at this time. This team is no fluke and is improving all the time."

DODGER DATA — Tommy John (6-4) will challenge former UCLA star Bill Bonham (6-5) in tonight's 7 p.m. contest. Sunday's probables are Don Sutton (7-2) vs. Rick Reuschel (9-2) on Camera Day.

Smith (pulled muscle), Steve Yeager (bad back) and Davey Lopes (bad side) were all missing from the starting Dodger lineup.

Murcer hit four home runs at Dodger Stadium last year when he was with the Giants

Title to launch 'Cup upset bid

INGLEWOOD — While Crystal Water will undoubtedly be the favorite in today's Hollywood Gold Cup, trainer Keith Stucki will not discount the possibility of an upset by his horse, Ancient Title.

"I believe he's just as good now as he was two weeks ago, when he won the Bel Air," he said. "This is the race we've really pointed him for since the Santa Anita (Handicap) and I'm confident he'll run well."

Title, indeed, has performed impressively in attempting to capture his second Gold Cup title of his seven-year career. California's all-time leading money winner ($1,082,716) won his first in 1975 as he trounced the rest of the field by four-and-a-half lengths in 1:59 1/5.

Two weeks ago, Ancient Title battled Rajab the entire way down the stretch in the 1⅛-mile Bel Air, prevailing by a nose at the wire in 1:47&3/5.

Since then, Title has drilled impressively with works of 1:24&3/5 and :46&4/5.

This will be the fourth time the veteran horse has been entered in Gold Cup competition, dating back to 1974 when he placed second behind Tree of Knowledge. Last year, he laid back in the pack throughout the race and failed to make his move, settling for a sixth-place finish.

Should Sandy Hawley and Ancient Title be successful in his upset bid and capture the $210,000 top money, he would climb into eighth place among all-time money-winners. The gelding in that case would pass such thoroughbred superstars as Citation, Fort Marcy, Cougar II, Foolish Pleasure, Carry Back, Susan's Girl, and Nashua.

However, in order to achieve this honor, Title would have to defeat the favored Crystal Water and Laffit Pincay, Jr.

This seems to have been a smart move, since the lat developing horse has come on strong to win the Santa Anita Handicap and the Californian at Hollywood Park.

Pay Tribute, who won last year's Gold Cup, heads the rest of the Cup hopefuls while packing 120 pounds and jockey Bill Shoemaker will be looking for his seventh Gold Cup triumph aboard Mark's Place.

Lakers sign second pick

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brad Davis, the Lakers' second pick in the recent National Basketball Association draft, signed a multiyear contract with the team Friday, the Lakers announced.

Davis, a 6-foot-3 guard from the University of Maryland, was the 15th players selected in the draft.

Los Angeles has not signed its other two first-round selections, North Carolina State forward Kenny Carr and Duquesne guard Norm Nixon.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Hubert Green took a look ahead to the third round after his solid 67 had established a one-stroke lead Friday at the halfway point of the 77th United States Open Golf Championship.

"I've never won a major," said Green, who came out of the pack using an ancient green-handled putter as his principal weapon.

"If I'm in this position tomorrow, everybody is gonna be asking, 'Can he hold up? Will he take the gas?'

HAPPY ARNIE

It was obvious that Green would have some ready answers.

Although he's won 11 tour titles, he feels he hasn't received due recognition through his lack of a major championship.

"I can't be considered a great player," Green has said before, "because I haven't won a major championship. You can't be a great player without winning those, and winning more than once."

He's now in his best position ever to make a run at the big one that has eluded him.

Green, troubled by erratic putting all year, one-putted eight times before posting his two-round total of 136, four under par on the deceptively tough, heat-scorched, 6,873-yard Southern Hills Country Club course.

Just one shot back halfway through the chase for the most prestige-laden and dearly-coveted title the game can offer was Terry Diehl, a one-tournament winner from Rochester, N.Y., who composed a 68 and had a 137 total.

"I'm just going to play like hell for the next two rounds," said Diehl, who saved his card in his rookie season with a victory in the 1974 San AntonioTexas Open, which he called "your proverbial back-to-thewall story."

Green and Diehl were among the seven men who shared the first round lead. The others lashed their ways to varied and assorted fates while the biggest gun in the game—awesome Jack Nicklaus—wheeled into position for a shot at a record-matching fourth American National championship.

Nicklaus, holder of a record 14 major professional titles but hungry as ever to add to that total, dropped a 15-foot eagle putt on the 560-yard 16th hole on his way to a 68 that put him back in business at 142, six shots back.

"That eagle gave me new life in the tournament," he said. "I'm definitely in 14. 142 is never a bad score in the U.S. Open. I can't remember an Open in which 142 wasn't very much in contention."

Tom Purtzer, one of the previously obscure young men who dominated the early season, came on with a second consecutive 69 and was third alone at 138.

Gary Player, the gritty little South African who wants so desperately to win this one again, once pitched in from deep, clinging rough for a birdie that highlighted his 67. He was tied for fourth at 139 with veteran tourist Rod Funseth and Sam Adams, who cheerfully describes himself as "the leading, left-handed touring pro from Boone, N.C." Funseth shot a 70 while the lefty Adams scored four birdies in a row, once coming within one inch of holing out a seven iron approach shot, in his 69.

Al Geiberger, author of that landmark, record-setting 59 a week ago, had a 71—despite a double bogey six on that troublesome, much discussed and often cursed 18th hole—and was five shots back at 141.

PGA champion Dave Stockton had a 75-153 and failed to make it into the last two rounds. So did the three veterans who were special invitees who hold such prominent places in the Open's history. Tommy Bolt, 65-year-old Sam Snead and Julius Boros all were at 153. Snead and Bolt shot second round 78s, Boros a 76.

"I was very lucky," Green said of his putting round. "I've been putting terrible all year. That birdie putt I made on the second hole, about 35 feet, that might be the longest putt I've made all year. It gives a lift to see one like that go in.

"I feel I'm playing good. There's still two rounds to go. Some players tend to get a little lazy at this point and fall back.

"I hope I don't. I hope I don't just sit on my little duff and let somebody catch me. I want to go forward. I want to make those guys try to catch me, not me fall back to them.

"I want to improve my position. I don't want to fall back."

That birdie on No. 2 set him off. He got another from 10 feet on the third, twice saved par when he missed the green, then got a seven iron approach to within six feet for birdie on No. 9.

But he missed the green on the 10th and drove into the rough on the 13th and bogeyed both. A two iron shot to three feet produced a birdie on the 14th and he took the lead alone with an 8-10 foot birdie putt from his crouched and curious stance on the 16th hole.

Diehl, 27, is in his fourth full year of tour activity. His only victory, in the 1974 Texas Open, came under the most dramatic conditions. A rookie, he had played poorly and needed a to win $3,000 in that, the last event of the year, to retain his playing rights. And he won the tournament.

"I feel I'm in good position as long as I can stay near the lead and make a move from there," said the skinny veteran who won the 1966 PGA national championship, was second in the U.S. Open last year and has a very good record in the major championships.

"I more or less grind them out in the major championships," said the steady man who has made a career of avoiding mistakes. "In the majors, you never have to shoot a super-hot last round."

Tom Weiskopf, a recent winner, had a 71 that put him in a large group with Nicklaus at 142. "I'm still playing good," Weiskopf insisted despite a mildly erratic effort that included an eagle and a double bogey in one stretch of three holes.

Arnold Palmer, the 47-year-old living legend who was only one shot off the first round lead, also was at 142 after a 72 that included another bogey on the final hole.

Johnny Miller all but counted himself out of it after a 73 put him at 144 and in a tie with Hale Irwin, Lee Trevino and others.

"I'm just not playing that well," said Miller, who once took three strokes to dig himself out of the soft sand of a bunker. It led to a triple bogey six.

Irwin shot 71 and Trevino rallied for a 70.

Tom Watson, the current Masters champion and easily the outstanding player in the game this year, had a 72 that left him a distant 10 strokes back at 146.

Defending champion Jerry Pate, sidelined most of the year with a pinched nerve in his neck, fell victim to the strength-sapping heat. He shot a 76 and just made the cut for the final two rounds at 148.

UNHAPPY MILLER

Quotes

"I believe many people feel I need psychiatric care for leaving UCLA, but others feel I'll be much happier here." — Basketball Coach Gene Bartow, after leaving the prestigious California school to establish an intercollegiate program at the University of Albama-Birmingham, which has only club and intramural sports.

"My breaking ball is flat, my fast ball has lost its velocity and the changeup has nothing."—pitcher Pat Zachry, traded by Cincinnati to the New York Mets, discussing nerve damage to the elbow of his pitching arm.

U.S. net team ousts S. Africa

EASTBOURNE, England (AP — The United States, led by Chris Evert, defeated South Africa 3-0 Friday and gained the final of the Federation Women's Lawn Tennis Cup.

Miss Evert and Billie Jean King took only 76 minutes between them to score singles victories in the semi-finals. Ms. King took only 23 minutes, not counting a rain delay between sets, to beat Greer Stevens 6-2, 6-0 and Miss Evert downed Brigitte Cuypers 6-1, 6-1 in 53 minutes to clinch the best-of-three series.

Then Miss Evert and Rosemary Casals won the doubles, topping Linky Boshoff and Ilano Kloss 6-0, 3-6, 9-7.

Noisy anti-apartheid demonstrations going on outside the stadium, made it difficult for the players.

When Miss Stevens, 20, came onto the center court with Ms. King the demonstrations outside the stadium were the noisiest of the week.

The continual shouting of "South Africa Out" and "Down with Apartheid" went on all through the match. Afterwards Miss Sevens said, "I tried not to let the noise worry me too much. I knew what they were shouting but I did not take too much notice."

The match began 90 minutes after schedule because of rain. The rain caused another 23 minute hold-up as soon as Ms. King had taken the first set 6-2.

When play resumed, Ms. King, who was wearing slacks under he sleeveless tennis dress against the cold, quickly regained control and whipped through the second set without loss of a game.

The 22-year-old Miss Evert soon made sure of her team's place in the final Saturday when she beat Miss Cuypers, who hardly was able to string two good shots together.

U.S. captain Vicki Berner said: "The noise from outside the stadium surely was not necessary. At least it did not put our players off too much."

Although the doubles was meaningless, it carried unusual interest because it was a match between the second and third seeded pairs in the women's doubles at Wimbledon.

The Americans had chances to win early in the final set but Miss Evert, serving for a 5-2 lead, dropped her service to give the South Africans another chance.

Miss Boshoff and the lefthanded Miss Kloss drew even at 4-4 and then matched the Americans shot for shot until Miss Kloss finally lost her service in the 16th game.

THE NEWEST RED — Pitcher Tom Seaver tucks in his Cincinnati Reds uniform for the first time Friday after joining the club in Montreal. The Reds' newest member is expected to get a starting mound assignment today.

Seaver tickled pink to be a Red

MONTREAL (AP) — The rich, cackling laughter gave him away. Tom Seaver was in a Cincinnati Reds uniform and tickled pink.

"I can't get used to all this red. I never thought that day would happen in my life," said the fireballing right-hander after joining forces with Cincinnati Reds Friday.

The five-time 20-game winner who put magic in the New York Mets uniform made his official entrance as a Cincinnati Red when he slipped into the back door of the clubhouse at 5:35 p.m. unannounced and almost unnoticed.

Then came the crush.

Team captain Pete Rose, wearing a T-shirt with the lettering "Hustle makes it happen" was among the first to seek him out. "I want to lodge a protest. Can I get back that 0-for-4 and three strikeouts?" grinned Rose, referring to Seaver's last outing against Cincinnati when he handcuffed the National League champs with a four-hitter.

"You think they look bad on us," giggled Joe Morgan, "wait until you see what they look like on you."

He tried on a pair of 34-waist pants. "Better make it 36," said Seaver.

Then he waited for a flood of questions. They never came.

"Well, somebody say something. Everybody is stunned. You guys are more in disbelief than I am," he said.

Manager Sparky Anderson's face lit up when the three-time Cy Young Award winner walked into his office. "Am I happy to see you, " said the white-haired Anderson, extending a hand.

"It's great to be here," said Seaver.

Seaver makes his debut as a Red Saturday when he takes he 7-3 record against Santo Alcala and the Montreal Expos.

Mets might re-acquire Kingman

NEW YORK (AP) - Slugger Dave Kingman, who had demanded to be traded from the New York Mets and got his wish when he was sent to the San Diego Padres Wednesday night, wouldn't mind returning to the Mets after this season.

Joe McDonald, Mets' general manager, said Thursday night that Kingman has asked the New York Mets to consider signing him after the end of the baseball season in October if he remains a free agent.

"Dave likes New York, he likes the Met organization and he's crazy about Joe Torre (Mets' new manager)," McDonald said. "When I called him to tell him offically of the deal, he then related his feeling to me about next year. Dave said he didn't know if he would sign with the Padres or anyone and requested me to pass the word on to Mr. Grant that he would like us to consider him if he is a free agent in October."

Kingman referred to M. Donald Grant, chairman of the board for the Mets with whom he was unable to agree on a 1977 contract.

Zachry's elbow is ailing

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Pat Zachry, a key figure in the trade that sent Tom Seaver to the Cincinnati Reds, expressed confidence Friday that his ailing right arm will be sound once he conquers nerve damage in his elbow.

The ailment, he said, developed during spring training. "It's getting better but I don't think it will ever be pain-free again."

Zachry said the elbow problem stems from off-season surgery to repair a hernia. "I couldn't do anything for two months after the operation. When I started throwing in January, the arm went tight. At spring training, I started favoring my elbow and fell into a lot of bad habits.

"My breaking ball is flat, my fast ball has lost its velocity and the changeup has nothing."

When told of Zachry's comments, Joe McDonald, the Mets' general manager, said he talked with Zachry Friday morning and the right-hander assured him his arm was fine. "He told me arm feels okay," said McDonald. "And In my talks with Cincinnati, I had never been apprised of anything wrong with his arm.

"We'll have to investigate this further."

McDonald said he would have Zachry talk to the Mets' team physician, Dr. James Parkes, before Friday night's game here against Houston.

Zachry flew to New York Friday and was scheduled to pitch for the Mets against the Astros.

Zachry, who helped the Reds win their second straight world championship last year, said he was temporarily stunned when informed of the trade. "At first, I was mad. I didn't want to go to New York. I thought, 'Why me?' The last eight years, I've dreamed, sweated and cried to get here and then they say, 'See you later.'"

During the flight, Zachry scanned a sports page and swore softly after reading of Seaver's tearful farewell to New York. He is aware that winning games will not necessarily win him fans at Shea Stadium, where Seaver has reigned as the Mets' leader for the past decade.

Zachry said he refuses to place added pressure on himself by trying to replace Seaver.

"I'm not going to worry about what he's done," said the 6-foot-5 Texan. "All I know is I'm here and they must have wanted me. Joe Torre (manager of the Mets) told me the deal would not have gone through if they had not gotten me."

Zachry doesn't see Seaver as the savior of the Cincinnati pitching staff. "Seaver will win his 20, maybe 30, but he's getting old. Cincinnati fans think he brings and instant pennant. That's a bunch of baloney!"

Zachry, who shared National League rookie of the year honors last season with a 14-7 record and a 2.74 earned run average, said the Reds have a tough assignment overcoming a 7½-game deficit to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It doesn't happen overnight," said the 25-year-old, among four Reds dealt to the Mets in exchange for the threetime Cy Young Award winner.

Zachry has a 3-7 record this season and expects "a poor reception," from Mets fans, embittered by the loss of Seaver. "They'll be all over me if I fall on my butt. I hope they are patient."

Zachry, speaking aboard the plane that brought him to New York, was accompanied by his fiancee, Sharron Hutchison, 26, of Waco, Tex. The two obtained a marriage license Wednesday, hours before Zachry was traded with utility infielder Doug Flynn, and minor league outfielders Steve Henderson and Dan Norman.

He and Miss Hutchison postponed the wedding. "It was supposed to be next Thursday," said Zachry, "but we (the Mets) will be playing in Chicago that day."

Zachry said he viewed the deal as "a brand new start. We're in last place. We can't go anywhere but up. I may not win 20 games, but I'll win my share."

Wolsink goes for 4th

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Gerrit Wolsink will be shooting for his fourth consecutive United States Motocross Grand Prix victory at Carlsbad Raceway Sunday, but he says No. 4 will be hard to get.

Wolsink, a dentist from Holland, will be facing the best riders in the world, including Belgium's Roy DeCoster and Finland's Hekki Mikkola.

Going into the race, Wolsink ranks third in the world championship riding standings, 43 points back of Mikkola and 10 behind DeCoster.

"This year the battle for the world championship has been tougher than ever," Wolsnk said. "Roger and I have had to work harder on the Suzuki team because the new bikes from Yamaha and Honda are so fast.

"There are 14 regular grand prix competitors coming to Carlsbad and every one of them is capable of winning.

"Then if you add to that the number of Americans who have the potential to beat the best in the world," Wolsink continued, "you can see that this grand prix is going to be the toughest of them all."

Dunn, Flood win tourney

The '77 Mixed Doubles Handicap Tournament, sponsored by the Citrus Belt Bowling Associations, both men's and women's, was held at Garey Center Bowl in Pomona last weekend.

This year's tournament had an entry of 367 mixed couples to vie for a share of the prize fund that totaled $2,642.40.

The champions were Dela Dunn and Raule Flood, both of San Bernardino, with a 1330 handicap total that earned the tournament trophy, plus first-place winnings.

Entering with a 171 average, Dela rolled the ladies' high scratch series of 632, including a 247 game. Dela recently represented the CBWBA as A Div. Champion in the State BVL Roll-Off. Just two pins shy of this leading total were Mickey and Bob Harquess of Yucca Valley.

Though placing third in the handicap standings, Clara Rettenmeyer, Sunnymead, paired with Ramon Novarro, Riverside, to claim the high scratch total of 1212.

Ramon, 194 average, compiled games of 203-202-249 to total 654, the high tournament series. Leta Hicks, Rialto, the '77 CBWBA Princess Tournament winner and 162-average bowler, added fame to her title with the ladies' high tournament game of 254.

Bowling with Earl Joliff, also of Rialto, they settled in sixth position with their 1288 handicap total. DeVonne Armstrong led all individual game competition with the tournament high of 268. He gained an ABC Century Award in the process, having entered with a 161 average.

Third and fourth winners were Dee Goldi and Tim Keheley, Rialto, 1306 total; Linda and Lary Gregory, Upland, 1294 total. Not only did the officers of the two associations cooperate in conducting the successful tournament, they combined an entry that made a good showing. Jean Dimattia, President of the CBWBA, partnered with Lou Rocca, Vice President of the CBMBA, placed seventh on the scoreboard with a 1286 total. Tied with this position were Jedith Hendon, Ontario, and Eldon Snider of Alta Loma.

Q. "WHAT IS MILDEW ?"

DICK ROGERS

Perhaps you have seen the powdery patches called mildew on the surface of leaves and fruit.

Mildew is a tiny plant that is closely related to mold. Mildew plants are so small that separately they cannot be seen by the naked eye.

Mildew plants do not make their own food, but live on such other living plants as roses, apples, and grapes.

Their threadlike bodies cover the surface on which they grow with a network of cobweblike growths, which often appear as small white patches.

They do a great deal of harm to the stems and leaves, drying them up and making them curl and twist.

Mildew can use many different kinds of things as food, and often attack clothes and books in damp climates.

As the mildew plant grows, it sends out tiny seedlike spores, which can be carried long distances by wind and insects.

When a spore finds a material to use for food, the spore grows into a new mildew plant.

Feminists circulate flyer on rapists

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A feminist group is circulating flyers that describe uncaptured sex offenders in an effort to warn women about the possibility they can be raped.

"Part of what we are trying to do is raise consciousness in people about rape," explained Ann Pride, coordinator of Pittsburgh Action Against Rape. "We want them to be aware that rapists look like everyone else. They're not all maniacal people who hang out in dark alleys."

Members of PAAR handed out 2,000 handbills to women during lunch hour Tuesday. The leaflets were emblazoned with warnings: "Women Beware! Naked Harry is stalking the streets. And watch for Bill, the computer programmer with the limp. He's loose, too."

Top billing went to "Naked Harry," a black youth who masturbates in front of women and children while wearing only a silver chain around his neck. He has appeared for the last two years in eastern Allegheny County.

"Someone who has been running around naked for two years may want to get caught. But I can also see someone like that taking the next step and raping someone," said PAAR member Christine Fowley.

The leaflets also described a rapist named Bill, reputed to be a computer programmer who walks with a limp.

But most of the descriptions were not so specific, such as one of a thin, white male, about 5-foot-6, with blond hair and blue eyes. The group has not decided whether to include the names of convicted sex offenders.

Pittsburgh police were "noncommittal" toward the flyers and said the incidence of rape is not increasing, as PAAR claims.

"I'm not going to jump up and say we have several rapists on the loose," said Sgt. John Flannigan, head of the city's youth and sex assault squad.

He said there was a 13 per cent drop in reported rapes in 1975 and last year's number of assaults — 287 — was about average.

PAAR, however, said reported sex assaults are up 21 per cent since last year and that represents only about 40 per cent of the actual rapes.

Alaska oil pipeline

Environmentalist happy

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Robert LeResche was a fish and game biologist when Congress gave the green light to the trans-Alaska pipeline. LeResche, like most wildlife biologists, feared an ecological disaster.

"It's sort of embarrassing, but looking back on it the thing wasn't all that bad," he says now.

LeResche, who is now Alaska's natural resources commissioner, is quick to add: "There's another way to look at it, of course. We were fairly successful in imposing environmental controls on them."

Government officials and the oil companies agree that these restrictions were unprecedented and expensive. The 800-mile-long pipeline — built at a cost of $7.7 billion so far — is virtually complete. On Monday, oil is to begin flowing south from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez.

The project generated more concern about potential environmental damage than any other single construction project in U.S. history. It took then-Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's vote to break a tie in the U.S. Senate and permit passage of legislation clearing the way for construction.

The end of construction doesn't mean the controversy is over, although most state and federal officials involved in monitoring the pipeline construction believe Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. has done a good job.

"We have pushed the frontiers of the state of the art of pipeline construction out to the absolutely limit of economic viability," says Chuck Champion, state pipeline coordinator. Champion was the state official responsible for monitoring pipeline construction.

Jim Kowalsky, Alaska field representative for Friends of the Earth, objects to questions like: "Do you think it will work?"

He responds: "Call me back in 35 years. It if works the first day, that doesn't mean it's going to work forever." But he adds: "I guess it will function."

There's one thing the environmental groups, industry and the government agree on: The all-weather construction road bridging the mighty Yukon and leading to the Arctic Ocean will have a much greater impact on the Arctic than the pipeline. No decision has been made yet on when the road — the United States' only road to the Arctic — will be opened to the public or whether access should be limited.

Reservations about the pipeline itself center on oil spill contingency plans and the tanker ships which will carry the oil south.

Champion says it's a shame that the pipeline was built to such exacting standards only to "get the oil to the dock at Valdez and pour the oil into a 1935 technology-type tanker and send it off somewhere."

Fishermen in Prince William Sound, site of the port of Valdez, are concerned about the gales that frequent the area. Questions have been raised about the ability of supertankers to negotiate Valdez Narrows, the entrance to the port.

There are fears that a tanker might run into Middle Rock, a rock near the center of the channel. Tankers have 900 yards of water between the rock and the shoreline.

The Coast Guard set up a one-way traffic system for ships, and it believes the transit will be relatively easy. Normal daily traffic will be three tankers.

Valdez Mayor Lynn Chrystal, a National Weather Service forecaster, says news reports have exaggerated the winds that occasionally buffet the area. The wind, according to critics of the Valdez port operation, makes transit of the Sound and the Narrows dangerous.

Purdy, who has served as captain of the ports in New York, Seattle and Honolulu, says the Valdez port will be closed when sustained winds reach 40 knots in the Narrows, even though tankers could probably get through in 70-knot winds.

Even with the wind, Chrystal says: "If you can't hit 900 yards of water with a tanker, then you can't drive a car in an airplane hanger without hitting the walls."

Alyeska has set up oil spill contingency plans for land and sea. But Gov. Jay Hammond believes a state system of fines ranging from $1 a gallon up to $10 a gallon will be much more effective than the contingency plan. Under the fine system, the state doesn't have to prove damage. All it has to show is the amount of the spill.

The tankers going into Valdez will be U.S.-built and staffed by U.S. crews, because of the Jones Act. That act requires the use of American vessels for shipping between U.S. ports.

But the oil companies already plan to ask permission to use foreign tankers because there are not enough U.S. tankers. And if President Carter decides to allow shipment of some of the oil to Japan, foreign tankers would be permitted unless prohibited by Congress.

Under the act passed to permit pipeline construction, the oil cannot be shipped overseas unless the President decides it is in the national interest.

While Champion and other state officials believe Alyeska generally has complied with environmental rules, Champion says he "had to do some head knocking."

Frank Fisher, in charge of environmental control for Alyeska, says Alyeska did make some mistakes and workers "occasionally were sloppy." But he says everything is being cleaned up.

Fisher and Champion say the loss of wildlife associated with the project was tragic. Both attribute it to feeding of animals by workers. Some bears had to be killed when they began living off handouts.

The fate of migratory caribou herds received national attention when the environmentalists got a court order blocking the project in the early 1970s. LeResche says no one knows for sure yet that the caribou will learn to cross the pipeline during their seasonal migrations. Fisher believes "the caribou couldn't care less about the line."

He also notes that Alyeska has built 450 designated moose crossings — each had to be 10 feet high. "We thought they could be a little lower and the moose could duck, but the biologists insisted."

What to do with Alaskan road?

PRUDHOE BAY, Alaska (AP) — Thanks to the trans-Alaska pipeline, the United States has a road to the top of the world. Now the question is what to do with it.

Environmentalists say it presents a far greater threat to the Arctic than the pipeline and its construction ever did. For once, oil men agree.

But there is pressure to open the road for tourism. And the trucking industry opposes the state's plan to impose a toll on industrial vehicles.

Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., which built the 367-mile-long road from the Yukon River to Prudhoe Bay on the Arctic Ocean, has called off its plans to turn the road over to the state.

Alyeska president Dr. W.J. Darch says the consortium feels turning the road over to the state this year "would be a bit unfair. We've got to give them lead time."

Robert LeResche, state natural resources commissioner, concedes: "We aren't really anxious to have it now." He and Gov. Jay Hammond want to study what impact there will be if they open up a pristine area to potential hordes of tourists.

LeResche says "clearly the largest long-term impact of the pipeline is the haul road." Jim Kowalsky, Alaska field representative for Friends of the Earth, agreed.

Darch also is concerned about security problems along the pipeline that could result from opening the road to the public.

The first oil is to be pumped into this end of the pipe on Monday. It won't reach the southern end, at Valdez, for a month or more.

The road, crossing the first bridge ever built over the Yukon River, opens up an area almost as large as the state of Texas.

Alyeska has permitted a few reporters to drive the road, and it's quite an experience. Imagine barreling down a fairly smooth dirt road to see a grizzly bear in the right lane — on your side — and a truck coming in the left lane.

The road crosses the Arctic Circle and the majestic Brooks Range, whose peaks reach 8,000 feet. The scenery isn't necessarily more spectacular than in some national parks in the lower 48, but there's a feeling about where you are.

The pipeline is visible in some areas along the road, although Alyeska has spent millions to hide it.

Once you cross the Brooks Range, the scenery changes abruptly. There are few trees even at lower elevations; just miles and miles of tundra. That monotony is largely unrelieved even when you reach the Arctic Ocean here, since it's frozen much of the year.

Once here there's nowhere to go. Alyeska doesn't permit unescorted visits of the Prudhoe oil fields. And tours must be prearranged.

Wiseman — population around 12 — is about the closest thing to a town along the road. June Reakoff, whose husband Rick is a hunting guide, says she's always feared the road more than the pipeline.

Before the pipeline, you walked into Wiseman or flew. Now the road is within a mile of town. Up the hill few miles in Linda Creek, population 1, gold miner Earl Boese, in his 60s, announces to anyone who stops his opposition to closing the road or charging a toll.

"The road should be open," Boese said. "Too many things are closed already by the Nazi bureaucrats." He hasn't been happy with the government ever since aerial wolf hunting was halted.

The Natives of northern Alaska have nearly unanimously opposed opening the road because they feared an intrusion of tourists and hunters could endanger their subsistence hunting of caribou and other wildlife.

The state also objects to the high cost of maintaining the road — estimated at $6.5 million annually after an initial expense of $14 million for equipment and facilities. That doesn't include the cost of stationing state troopers along the line.

Alyeska has spent around $18 million annually for maintenance, suggesting to some that the state wouldn't maintain the standards set by the oil companies. And one of the first things you notice when you cross the Yukon and reach the state-maintained Elliott Highway is the rapid deterioration in the road surface.

The state also has noted the total lack of private facilities for food, gas or lodging along the road. Darch says Alyeska isn't going to be serving as "a motel and gas station" much longer.

"We've lived without tourist facilities (north of the Yukon) for two million years and I suspect we can get along for another one or two years without them," says Atty. Gen. Avrum Gross.

Interviews with Julie are canceled

CHICAGO (AP) — Two Chicago broadcast stations have canceled interviews with Julie Nixon Eisenhower, saying her publisher sought to impose ground rules limiting questions.

WMAQ-TV and WBBM Radio canceled the interviews scheduled for Thursday and Friday after receiving a telephone call from Simon & Schuster, publisher of Mrs. Eisenhower's "Special People," which she is publicizing on a nationwide tour.

"As a news organization, we don't enter into any agreements on what the questions will be or we don't discuss what the questions will be," said Al Snyder, executive news producer at WMAQ. "If we want to interview someone, we'll ask them what we want."

Mrs. Eisenhower was scheduled to appear on a live, five-minute interview hosted by Jorie Lueloff on WMAQ.

Ms. Lueloff, who prefers that designation, said Chris Casson from Simon & Schuster called and said that when Mrs. Eisenhower appeared on NBC's "Today Show" last week "she had been asked a lot of very rough questions about the David Frost interviews, her father and Watergate; that she didn't want to talk about those things and that would be a condition of the interview.

"I told her I didn't see how we could agree."

John Hultman, news director of all-news station WBBM, also cancelled a scheduled interview.

"Why should I accept any limitations on what I can ask?," he said. "I don't honor any ground rules. From a journalistic standpoint, it's not right. So I canceled her."

Ironically, Snyder knows Mrs. Eisenhower personally. He was Richard Nixon's media adviser for four years.

Mrs. Johnson- check on her

The woman said she was checking out of the hotel, wrote a check, handed it to Rose, and waited.

"Thank you, ma'am. Do you have some identification?" Rose asked.

"What sort of identification would you need?" the woman asked.

"Oh, just a Texas driver's license and a credit card," Rose said, still smiling.

"I'm afraid I don't have a driver's license with me," the woman said.

"How about a credit card?"

"Not with me, I'm afraid," the woman responded.

The woman rustled through her handbag and produced an insurance identification card.

"Golly," said Rose, "I'm not sure we can accept just that. If you'll wait here I'll check with our front-office manager."

"I guess I should have recognized her," Rose said after the incident Thursday, "but I was only in the first grade when her husband was elected president."

"I care what happens to them and I think we can learn from their experiences," said John Quinn, who handed out the new lottery's first jackpot prize to a 19-year-old gas station attendant.

"In general, people who win lotteries have little experience with huge fortunes," he said. "Fortunately, none of the top winners has squandered the money so far. Now I hope to get them together so they can exchange advice on how to manage large sums of money."

Quinn said he has kept in touch with all nine top winners, who receive $1,000 a week for life with a guaranteed minimum of $1 million, and hopes to bring them together for their first club meeting in October.

Polanksi rape trial postponed

SANTA MONICA (AP) — The Roman Polanski rape and drug trial was postponed Friday until Aug. 9 because of a court schedule conflict.

The trial, originally scheduled for June 29, was moved back in order to avoid interrupting another case scheduled to be heard by the same judge — Superior Court Judge Laurence J. Rittenband.

Polanski, the movie director charged with raping and drugging a 13-year-old girl, did not attend Friday's hearing. He is in Tahiti scouting locations for an upcoming film he plans to direct.

In the brief court proceeding, the prosecution asked for and was granted appointment of an expert to examine and test the undergarments worn by the 13-year-old girl.

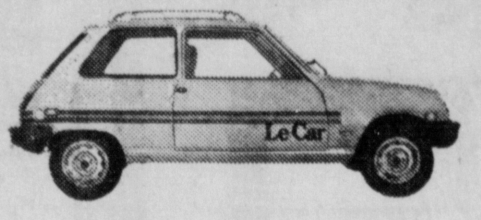
Le Car vs. La Competition



Americans are discovering what 1½ million Europeans already know. When it comes to performance, economy, comfort and engineering, Le Car is in a class by itself.

About the only thing Le Car has in common with little cars is its size.

The result is the kind of incredible handling and maneuverability that helped Le Car take first in its class in 12 out of 16 races last year.

Test drive Le Car and you'll find out why it's Le Car Hot.

Story on Pages 6-7

Doc Peirsol

It happened in Pomona

Vegetables were a lot cheaper in those days but still, in 1904, thrifty Pomonans were planting back yard gardens. Not so much perhaps to cut down on the high cost of living as it was to engage in friendly rivalry with the neighbors to see who could raise the finest crops. And on that score, according to statistics published in the December 13, 1904, issue of The Pomona Daily Review, all time honors for vegetable growing undoubtedly belong to E.E. Thurman who lived on North Garey Avenue. Can any Pomonan, before or after that illustrious year, come close to equaling this astounding record which was given front page prominence in The Review?

Despite many rumors to the contrary, Boris Spassky, who for the time being at least is now residing in France, retains a close relationship with the USSR Chess Federation.

For example, for his recent Candidate's Match with Vlastimil Hort of Czechoslovakia, held in Reykjavik, Iceland, Spassky was provided with ex-world champion Vassily Smyslov as a second.

When this writer visited the headquarters of the Soviet federation in Moscow during the time that match (with the score tied) was interrupted by Spassky's attack of appendicitis, he witnessed several telephone conversations by concerned Soviet officials with Reykjavik about Spassky's condition and future match arrangements.

There was also a visibly strong regret that Spassky's illness would prevent him from playing on the Soviet team in the then forthcoming European Team Championships.

A couple of weeks after an appendectomy was performed on Boris, the match was resumed. After a couple of draws, Spassky won the penultimate game and then drew the last game to win the match.

In the following position from the decision game, Hort, who was on the move, ran out of time and forfeited. But had he been able to continue, he could have forced an immediate win with 35 . . . BxB; 36 QxB Q-N5, threatening 37 . . . QxP mate. Spassky's 37 R-B2 would then have lost to 37 . . . QxP mate. Spassky's R-Q8ch; 38 R-B1 RxQR; 39 RxR Q-Q8ch etc. Similarly if 37 P-N3, then 37 . . . Q-R6!; 38 R-B2 RpQ8ch; 39 R-B1 QxR mate.

Lafayette, we are here — with a 13-cent U.S. commemorative stamp in your honor. The new stamp was issued June 13 in Charleston, S.C.

The date of June 13 marks the 200th anniversary of Lafayette's landing on the coast of South Carolina, just north of Charleston. He came to join the fight for independence of the colonies and within three months was commissioned a major general in the Continental Army.

The young Marquis was accepted as a member of George Washington's "family" and he often referred to Washington as his "adopted father." Lafayette was hailed in this country as a hero and won a special place in the heart of Americans.

The new 13-cent stamp is not the first to honor the famous Frenchman. In 1952 a commemorative marked the 175th anniversary of his arrival in America and a second stamp was issued in 1957 on the 200th anniversary of his birth.

The 1977 stamp design is based on a print of an engraving of Lafayette held by the Bettman Archives in New York. The encircled engraving is the center portion of the vignette of the stamp. Across the top, in one line of blue type, appears "Lafayette." Across the bottom, in red, is "US Bicentennial 13 Cents."

If you want to use the new system for first day cancellations by purchasing your own stamps at the local post office and affixing them to envelopes, send them to "First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, Charleston, S.C., 29401" prior to June 28.

Should you prefer the old system of the USPS affixing the new stamps to your envelope, then send your request together with a money order for 13 cents to: "Lafayette Stamp, Postmaster, Charleston, S.C., 29401." Orders must also be postmarked no later than June 28.

COFFEE GRINDER

QUESTION: I am enclosing photos of a beautiful old table top coffee grinder we purchased years ago as a decorative piece for our home. The box is solid cherry and the grinder is metal with a pewter top. The box and drawer are both dovetailed. Can you tell me how valuable this grinder is today? It is in perfect working condition.

Now that coffee prices have reached $4.95 per pound in our city, we have been grinding our own each morning — saving about one-third the amount we normally use for a pot of coffee. In our opinion, the strength is the same and the coffee has a much richer flavor. Mrs. G.F.C.

ANSWER: During recent months, prices of coffee grinders in good working order have risen about as sharply as coffee prices — as others share your opinion. Your coffee grinder with its cherry box and pewter top is a choice example. Presently, these are fetching around the $75 to $85 figure in antique shops and shows.

QUESTION: I would appreciate your comments on a Civil War rifle 41 inches long, and a sword 42½ inches long, belonging to my paternal grandfather who served in the Civil War. These have been kept in excellent shape by good family friends and their descendants. The rifle has some engraving that might help in its evaluation: "US Springfield" and "US Model 1873" is engraved on the gun along with the number 143254. The sword is also engraved with "US 1864, C. Roby, Chelmsford, Mass." We possess the accompanying canteen and ammunition belt that grandfather wore.

Just out of curiosity and keen interest, are these items worth anything in the antique market? C.F.

ANSWER: They certainly are! Prices for Springfield rifles like you describe start around $300 and go up. And swords are selling in the $150-$250 range.

Today, the appeal of early weapons and accessories is perhaps as great as any of the tools or articles that are classified as collectible Americana.

QUESTION: I have a what-not that was left to me by my mother. She would be about 100 now, if she were living. The enclosed sketch (proportions bad) will show that this piece of furniture has five tiers. The finials and supporting posts are nicely turned and are threaded at the ends so that the piece can be taken apart. There is an interesting back on the top shelf, having lots of cut-outs. The shelves are graduated, each having a scolloped front. This what-not is 58 inches tall and 23 inches wide at the base, and the wood is walnut. It has never been refinished. What would an antique like this one be worth? T.N.H.

ANSWER: Your very desirable Victorian what-not is worth approximately $125-$150.

Sister Joan: she calls herself transmissionary

BRENTWOOD, N.Y. (AP) — She calls herself a transmissionary. That causes groans, but isn't nearly so awful as grace-monkey. Sister Joan, you see, is an automobile mechanic.

What's a nice nun like her doing in a job like that?

"The last straw was when my brakes failed and I drove right through the toll gate. I finally stopped by hitting a bush. I had just had the brakes repaired three times. When they took the wheel off the brake parts fell out on the ground.

"It occurred to me that not everyone who worked in a garage was necessarily a mechanic and the results could be disastrous. I decided to be one."

That was in 1961. Since then, a number of unscrupulous garagemen have learned that a soft voice and a veil do not a victim make.

Not long ago Sister Joan took a car to get the wheels aligned because she didn't have the equipment to do it herself. The man told her — lucky for her he caught it — that she needed new ball joints, had to have 'em to order for him to align the wheels.

"Those ball joints are well within tolerance and are in fact brand new," Sister Joan aid.

"I too," the nun replied evently, "am a licensed state motor vehicle inspector." End of ripoff.

Even when you catch her in sweater and slacks cleaning up her shop, Sister Joan Marese (her family name has three syllables) is not one you would pick out of a crowd as a mechanic.

Not that mechanics can't also have deep, piercing brown eyes and a demeanor so gentle it is almost apologetic, but she just seems so little. She weighs barely 125 pounds and, from black oxfords to blue veil, measures 5 feet 2.

"You learn to compensate for strength," she said. "For example, I can slip a pipe over a wrench handle to increase the leverage and accomplish the same thing a larger person can.

"But my size also has its advantages. Mechanics need to get into tight places and I can do it. I don't need to raise a car to check underneath it. I just scoot under on a piece of cardboard."

Scooting under cars was not what Sister Joan had in mind when she entered the convent after graduating from college in 1951. "I really just wanted to be of service to people," she said. "As it turned out, I think I am."

Nonetheless, the Sisters of St. Joseph, the order of nuns she joined, is a teaching order and teaching third graders the three Rs was what Sister Joan did at first.

"Faucets leaked and windows stuck and, well, everything was in disrepair," she said. "Instead of calling a repairman I went to the hardware store and asked what to do and how to do it. I became fairly good at plumbing, electricity, carpentry, simple repairs. Pretty soon I was the one everybody called when something needed fixing."

All this has led to 13 years of adult education courses at the local high school in various crafts; she just finished locksmithing. But it was that moment of terror at the toll booth that charted Sister Joan's main path.

She enrolled at the Delehanty Institute in New York for a 900-hour course in auto mechanics, liked it, took another 1,100 hours, and now is the mother superior, as it were, of a

Will it slow the action?

On-the-spot tax question

RENO, Nev. (AP) — One of the big questions in the gaming industry these days is whether the Internal Revenue Service will go for on-the-spot gambling winning withholdings from bingo, keno and slot machines after 1979.

Most feel such requirements will slow down the action, irritate players and not really garner that much more revenue for the federal government.

"No way," says Nevada Congressman Jim Santini, "They will find out that it is just too much of a headache, too much paperwork and not worth the effort."

Santini was talking about a 2½-year study ordered by Congress to determine the feasibility of such withholding. And the IRS study amounts to a mound of paperwork shoveled by Nevada casinos.

On each bingo and slot payoff of $1,200 or more, and keno payouts of $1,500, a casino must fill out a W2G form with the winner's identity. An estimated 90,000 forms will be sent by the bundles to a regional IRS office in Ogden, Utah, this year. Keno payout report forms reflect the amount of the wager, which is deducted from the winnings.

But there is no such provision for slots or bingo, prompting the ire of the gaming industry.

"How in the hell can they tax payouts as income?" asked Les Kofoed, director of the Gaming Industry Association of Nevada. "When someone pumps $2,000 into a nickel slot and finally hits a $1,200 jackpot, how can you call that winning, and then pay taxes on it when you really lost $800?

"I would think that if they (the IRS) went along with the guidelines we suggested, that's $1,500 for bingo, $2,500 for keno and $5,000 for slots, then there might be some taxable revenue there. But less than that, you aren't taxing windfall earnings, you're talking about payouts without indicating losses," contended Kofoed.

Casinos are not obligated to list any winnings from table games such as blackjack, although winners are supposed to report gains.

The girs established a $600 limit for reporting on the three games, but Nevada Senators Paul Laxalt and Howard Cannon, along with Santini, pushed up the levels after some sessions with the IRS and Treasury Department.

Santini said, "If the IRS is fair about this study, and they send people out here to see what really happens, how a slot machine works and how much people really put in to get something out, then they'll realize the casinos always have been properly reporting windfall winnings and they'll see on the spot withholding isn't the best way."

A spokesman in Laxalt's office concurred: "We think the IRS will find out this reporting system is not worth the hassle, that the only real winners in gaming are the operators. If there were that many real winning players, the industry wouldn't be as profitable as it is."

Reno IRS spokesman Marty Bibb said all casinos appear to be fully complying with the present IRS study. He decline to speculate on what the outcome might be.

Sparing words is Cheever's trait

NEW YORK (AP) — When he speaks, John Cheever is sparing with his words — almost as if he were saving them for some other purpose.

His writing, perhaps. For Cheever is a noted short-story writer and novelist. He has worked long at perfecting his craft, and he says with pride, "I'm a writer of stories because writing stories is what I do best."

At 64, Cheever, a slender, soft-spoken man, can look back over a long writing career that began with the publication of his first short story at age 17.

"After being expelled from school," Cheever says with a smile and no explanation, "I wrote a story and sold it to the New Republic. That was the first published." But by no means the last. By the time he was in his early 20s, Cheever had published stories in such magazines as the Atlantic and the New Yorker.

"I've published 120 stories in the New Yorker," Cheever says. "But since I'm fairly prolific, at least I think I am, I've got about 220 stories behind me as well as four novels. I had a heart attack about three years ago that knocked me out for a year, and the two years I spent with an infantry line company in World War II didn't give much time for writing, but all in all I think I'm fairly prolific."

Cheever, best known, perhaps, for his National Book Award-winning novel, "The Wapshot Chronicle," and its successor, "The Wapshot Scandal," now has a new novel published, "Falconer."

On the surface, the book tells of the confinement of Ezekiel Farragut in a prison called Falconer for the slaying of his brother. But, like all of Cheever's writing, it deals with wider themes.

"All of my work," he says, "deals with the themes of confinement and what I call blue sky — by that I mean lightness, I mean enjoyment, and the pursuit of it.

"By confinement, I mean the confinements of society — spiritual, emotional, sentimental, physical — every kind of confinement. In 'Falconer,' I chose a prison as a metaphor for confinement because prison is the most universal symbol of confinement and confinement is one of the most universal experiences."

Cheever lives with his wife — "we've been married 40 years almost" — near Ossining, N.Y., in "the neighborhood of Sing Sing Prison but it does not cast a pall over the life of our village and we are not aware of it."

He taught at the prison for two years a few years back but is quick to emphasize that he did not do so to get the material for "Falconer."

"I went to teach writing at the prison because I heard that the 2,000 inmates there had only six teachers," he says forcefully. "It was a good experience, and I did not go there to research for my book. That was not my intent. Also, I want to make very clear that the students I had are not characters in my book."

Cheever also emphasizes that "I have always earned my living by writing, even though it's been very precarious, very touch-and-go all the way through. It was very rough in the early years. But, wait, rough is not quite the word, it was insecure. It still is for that matter. My books sell, but not all that well. But I still very much enjoy writing."

Cheever says he is currently working on "a long story, but I don't know what it is yet. Call it a big piece of fiction. I've no idea when I'm going to finish it or what it's going to be like."

Sister Joan —

flock of about 200 vehicles, mostly donated and therefore in need of repair, at the order's 100 or so institutions in the New York area.

At Brentwood, where the sisters have a nursing home for elderly nuns, Sister Joan discovered an old abandoned stable and converted it into a garage. Here is where she has her inspection station and does major repairs.

"No," she said, answering yet again a question she says she is often asked, "I don't think my vocation is at all unsisterly. What I do is important and serves people, and labor is a prayer."

Does she have, then, any unfilfilled dreams for the life of a nun?

"Yes," she said, grinning, "I dream of someday having an air compressor and good bumper jack and a real lift instead of portable ramps, but no, basically I'm very happy."

Furnishings of Rancho Los Alamitos make the rooms seem still lived in.

Rancho Los Alamitos

One hundred and seventy-one years ago, Juan Jose Nieto, son of a former sergeant in Don Gaspar Portola's expedition of discovery, built a large, rambling adobe on a small hill near the Pacific in what was then New Spain. The property, 156,000 acres, had been awarded to the sergeant by a Spanish land grant in 1784. Nieto built the handsome casa from the clay-like soil on the hill, patting it into bricks and drying them in the sun. The walls of the adobe were four feet thick.

Today the building, restored and enlarged, is the heart of Rancho Los Alamitos (Ranch of the Little Cottonwoods), a historical museum of the City of Long Beach. It is one of the few remaining buildings over which the Spanish, Mexican and American flags have flown.

In the nearly two centuries since Sgt. Manuel Nieto was awarded the land grant, the vast tract has been divided into many ranches, the old adobe deserted for periods of time, then restored and enlarged by the addition of bedrooms, halls, bathrooms, a music room, a library. Rancho Los Alamitos passed through many ownerships over the years, coming at last under the Bixby Home Property Trust whose trustees, in 1968, presented it to the City of Long Beach — the old adobe, various farm buildings and 7½ acres of tree-shaded property. The rancho is administered by the city library and maintained by the parks department.

The adobe and assorted barns, stables and sheds encircle a broad lawn that resembles a park more than a working ranch. Here is a dairy barn labeled "Cow Palace"; stables where one owner, John Bixby, raised stallions; a restored sheepherder's wagon, and a blacksmith shed that is sometimes used to demonstrate to visiting school children the making of tools, brands and horseshoes. Here and there about the green are old hay wagons, a harvester, a log-splitter and a variety of plows.

Because Rancho Los Alamitos is on the site of the ancient Indian village of Pubugna, the city has plans to construct a small replica of the Indian community — a round, thatched hut already stands amid the shrubbery.

The graceful adobe faces a broad lawn on which stand two giant Moreton Bay fig trees, native to Australia, now about 85 years old. The rooms are furnished with turn-of-the-century and contemporary chairs, tables, sofas, bookcases, lamps, curtains and Oriental rugs, so that the adobe seems lived-in today. Much of the furniture has been handed down for generations, and many pieces are valuable antiques. Visitors will see toys, dolls, children's clothes, a pipe collection and a rare collection of glass objects. Some wardrobes have had their wooden doors replaced by glass, to become showplaces for lovely dresses of the gaslight era. There are also many Indian artifacts, including some found at the site of the adobe.

A prominent attraction of Rancho Los Alamitos is the attractive garden — or gardens — that surround it. There is a cactus and succulent garden, a herb garden, a Friendship Garden, a rose garden, a native garden, a geranium walk and an oleander walk. A stream runs through the garden (recycled water) and forms pleasant pools. Near the house stands a large fish pond stocked with Japanese koi (carp) donated by the Japanese Pet Fisheries of Tokyo, some of whose members visited the adobe and were charmed by it.

Rancho Los Alamitos is open from 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. Guided tours are provided by a group of some 50 docents who volunteer their time.

The adobe is reached by the San Gabriel River Freeway (605) south to the San Diego Freeway, west to Palo Verde Avenue, and south to the end of the street, through a guard gate and up Bixby Hill Road to 6400.

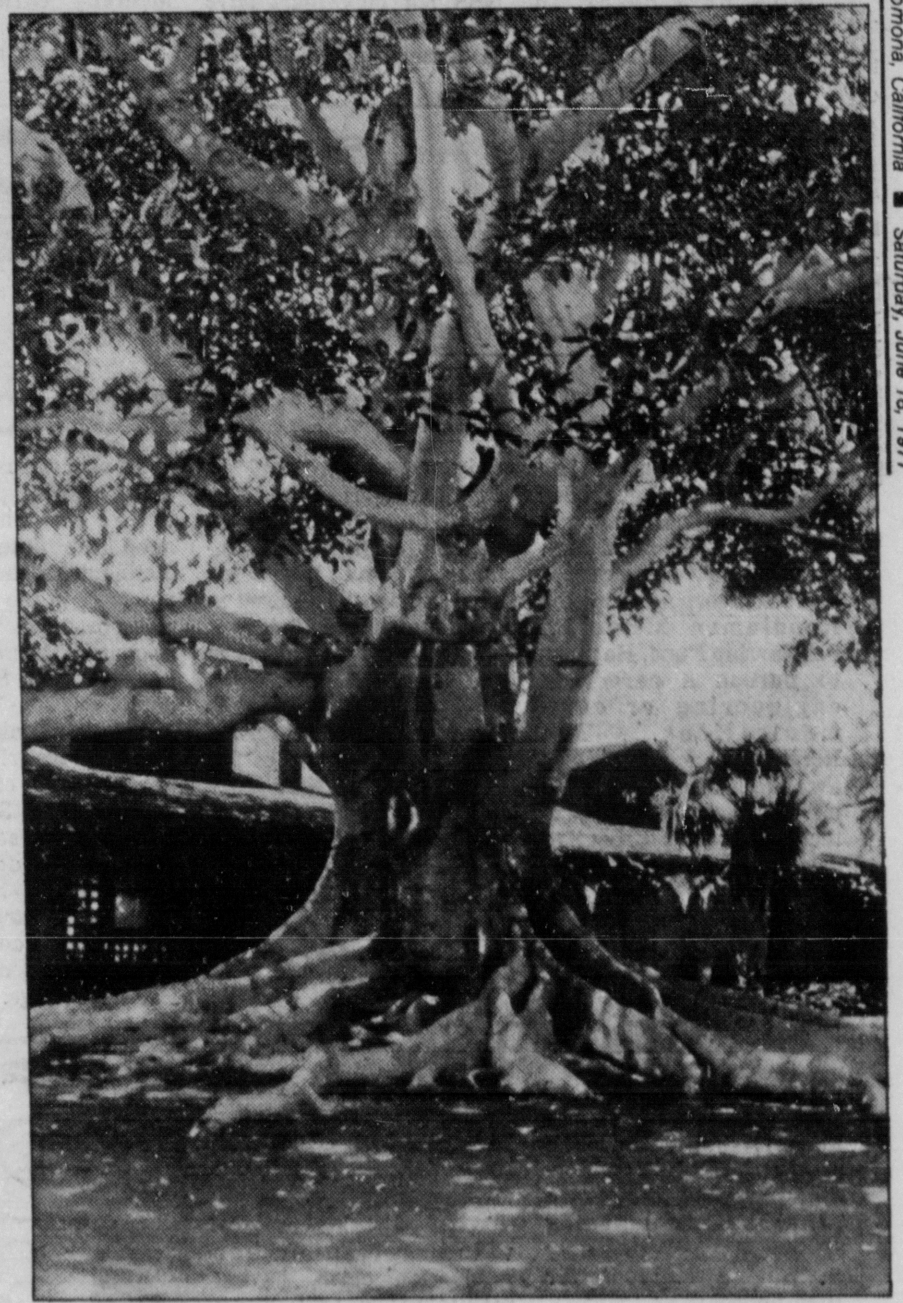
ON THE COVER

Standing on a hill overlooking Long Beach, the 171-year-old adobe of Rancho Los Alamitos is now a historical museum. The graceful hacienda and the 7½ acres of surrounding parks and grounds are maintained by the City of Long Beach. The rancho is open to visitors Wednesday through Sunday.



Eighty - five - year - old Moreton Bay fig trees from Australia are sentinels in front of the adobe.

Garey Correspondent

A chapter of the National Honor Society (NHS) has been organized at Garey High School in Pomona. Headed by advisers Ginger Friedman and Norman Poulos, it is one of only four chapters in Southern California.

NHS originated in eastern Los Angeles County and has not been popular throughout Southern California because of the existence of the California Scholastic Federation (CFS), which deals with student academic excellence.

The difference between the two organizations, though, is this. A student desiring membership in NHS not only must have scholarship, but also leadership, character and service qualifications.

Membership in CFS only requires scholarship.

New NHS members at Garey were installed by Councilman Ben Ochoa, school board vice president Fran Livingston, Schools Supt. Charles Carpenter and Douglas MacKenzie, chairman of the district's Mentally Gifted Minors Program.

Refreshments were served by club members. A $50 scholarship was presented to Phillip Lee, this year's NHS president.

Trio from Upland high

Three Upland High School seniors have been awarded scholarships.

Dale Hohe, son of Mrs. Nancy Rohe, was awarded a $75 scholarship from the Randleman Memorial Scholarship Fund. He plans to pursue a career in engineering or communications. The Randleman Scholarship is awarded annually to a prospective industrial arts teacher or a prospective architect. This fund was originated in 1969 in memory of Wallace Randleman, former Upland High School industrial arts instructor who was fatally injured in an automobile collision.

Jim Sonner, son of Larry and Teresa Sonner, was awarded the $75 Darms Memorial Scholarship. He plans to attend one of the Claremont Colleges next fall. To qualify for this scholarship, applicants had to meet a minimum grade point average requirement of 3.75 and represent the type of character, academic potential, and distinguished achievement potential in the future that was possessed by the late Leonard Darms, former Upland High School student.

Julie Flamming, elected "girl who contributed most to the class of 1977" at Upland High School, has received a scholarship from Aerojet Electro Systems Co. She is interested in surgical nursing and will continue her studies next year at Azusa Pacific College.

The Ontario branch of Southwest Savings and Loan Association has presented the 1977 California Savings and Loan League's "Outstanding Student Award" to Kathy S. Gatzke of Montclair High School.

Miss Gatzke, a graduating senior, was honored at an awards luncheon at the Biltmore Bowl in Los Angeles on May 13. A check for $100 and an engraved medallion were presented to her by Jack A. Tweedy, assistant vice president and manager of the Ontario branch. She was recognized at Montclair High School's academic awards assembly.

Miss Gatzke is co-valedictorian of her graduation class, having maintained a perfect 4.0 grade point average the past four years. She has been a member of the California Scholarship Federation for four years and has been in the Girl's Athletic Association, Montclair High School Marching Band and Girl's League.

CSEA scholarships set

Karen Lewis and Cheryl Padilla have been awarded $150 scholarships by Pomona Chapter 14, California School Employes Association (CSEA).

Miss Lewis is a student at Pomona High School. She plans to attend Mt. San Antonio College and major in theater arts. She is the daughter of Richard E. Lewis of Wrightwood and Mrs. Dorothy Lewis of Pomona, an executive secretary in the Pomona school district.

Miss Padilla, a student at Garey High School, also plans to attend Mt. San Antonio College. She will major in business. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Padilla. Her mother, Billie, is an instructional aide in the reading lab at Simons Junior High School.

Students earn MECHA awards

Ten Pomona High School seniors have been selected to receive $100 MECHA scholarsips to assist them as they enter four-year and private colleges for 1977-78.

The scholarships are to be used to purchase books and supplies.

HELEN HERNANDEZ

CONNIE LOPEZ

The recipients are Patty Alvarez, who plans to attend Mt. San Antonio College; Cynthia Chavez, Pomona College; Olga Davila, Cal Poly Pomona; Raul Garcia, Mt. San Antonio College; Helen Hernandez, La Verne College; Connie Lopez, Cal Poly Pomona; Richard Nila, Mt. San Antonio College; Domingo Rodriguez, U.C. San Diego; Susan Salazar, Cal Poly Pomona; and Richard Vega, Whittier College.

Each recipient has been active several years in MECHA. Each has participated in community cultural fiestas in Pomona and Ontario. The MECHA float won second place in the Cinco de Mayo parade in Ontario.

Faculty adviser Mike Arredondo said these 10 students have made the MECHA Club at Pomona High School the most active the school has had for several years.

MECHA's objectives are to involve students in school activities and promote cultural exchange. MECHA sponsored a campus Chicano Culture Week during which members related contributions Mexicans have made to our society.

This was the club's main fund-raising event and helped the club raise money for the scholarships.
